MANUFACTURERS AIDED BY INDUSTRIAL BUREAU

Adjunct of Chamber of Commerce Gives Valuable Service to Members

Responding to the awakening in all lines of business throughout the country and profiting by the work of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce at Washington, to assist the export business of American manufacturers, the industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce has inaugurated a system of giving prompt and accurate information to its members, who are engaged in the manufacturing business, and the responses which have already been received from a number of Atlanta manufacturers indicate not only an appreciation of the complications made in Washington, but also of the prompt and careful manner in which this information is conveyed to our local people who are interested.

The Washington bureau publishes a daily print, called the "Commerce Bureau," and also issues, when occasion arises, bulletins on special subjects relating to the extension of our export trade. These prints come promptly to the industrial bureau of the chamber, where they are quickly read and studied by Harvey Johnson, secretary of the bureau. Everything which appears to Mr. Johnson as of interest to those of the chamber's members engaged in manufacturing or jobbing, is quickly sent to the interested parties.

From these government prints suggestions are made as to foreign trade opportunities, giving accurately the country, the party to which country wishes to import, and frequently bank and other business references. As interesting local parties, it may be said that inquiries have been coming in from Europe, South and Central America and even still more distant countries, cotton, silk, wool and other fabrics, cotton, silk, meat and cake, metal beds, cans, tin plate, agricultural implements, woolen fabrics, cement, brick, shoes, shoes, paper products, overalls, neckties, wire nails and fencing and a number of other articles, which like those above mentioned, are manufactured in or immediately around Atlanta by members of the chamber of commerce. Many Atlanta manufacturers are alive to the possibilities now offered of extending their export business, and where business has not yet been done, are entering it at the earliest moment. Many have already utilized to advantage the information supplied by the industrial bureau, and pronounce it of great value in directing them through lines of investigation which are likely to give results.

In this connection it is of interest to the public to know that foreign importers are just as awake to get American goods as Americans are to sell them. The European war has practically stopped exports from some of the European countries while the others these exports have been tremendously diminished, and the importers in South and Central America, in Japan, China, and other countries which have been buying many articles heavily in Europe, are now looking to make arrangements with American manufacturers for American products. These relations, once made, will most probably remain permanent, and this is the principal reason why the present is the time to take advantage of the unfortunate situation prevailing in Europe and introduce American goods in many places where they have never been sold before.

Atlanta and Georgia, with their accustomed business acumen, will not fail to see the hopefulness of the present opportunities, and the industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce stands ready to give all who may be interested its prompt and active aid.

Food for Explorers

BOSTON, June 19.—Laden with two years' supplies for the Donald B. MacMillan Arctic exploration party, the Grenfell Mission schooner George B. Cluett, sailed for the Far North today. The Cluett will stop at St. Anthony's on the north extremity of Newfoundland to discharge passengers and a quantity of medicines, clothing and supplies for the Grenfell Mission, then proceed to Etah, Greenland, the base of the exploring expedition.

ATLANTA MEN PUT ON PROSPERITY COMMITTEE

Plan to Conduct Countrywide Business Revival and Trade Stimulus

Atlanta business men are well represented on the national committees which will direct the country-wide business revival and trade stimulus to be known as "Electrical Prosperity Week." The purpose of this unusual undertaking is to accelerate the swing back of prosperity's pendulum throughout the nation. Back of the movement are men representing investments in the electrical industry of more than $2,000,000,000. The appeal of the campaign, which is aimed to hit at "hard times" prophets, and to give prosperity its true meaning, will penetrate to the most obscure section of the United States. On thousands of billboards on millions of posters, stamps, circulars, in the newspapers and magazines, in pamphlets and house organs, on electric signs, on railroad stations and in the new "white ways" of a thousand cities, the message of the campaign, "Electrical Prosperity," will be heralded. Across the face of the nation will blaze a great illuminated belt, the section chosen probably along the route of the Lincoln highway. The movement will be pointed to a special week, November 25 to December 1, during which the whole country will be invited to take part in a pace and prosperity celebration.

On the special local committees chosen are 800 of the foremost electrical men of the country. On the Georgia section committee are:

Atlanta, Ga.—E. J. Wallis, manager Western Electric company; W. H. Brown, Collier, sales manager Georgia Railway Light and Power company; M. W. Rosborough, southern main line Shelby Lee Division; L. L. Silvers, vice president W. E. Carter Electric company; D. H. Brainerd, editor Electrical Engineering, Savannah, Ga.—Edward S. Roberts, contract agent Savannah Electric company; F. M. Byrne, president Electric Sales company.

HOUSTON, June 19.—The officers of the Association of Little Manufacturers of Paris have asked Monsieur Thomson, minister of commerce, to organize an exposition of German-Austrian articles in Paris. This exposition is not for the general public, but is intended to inform the manufacturers of little articles, such as are generally known as "articles de Paris," concerning the ways of manufacture, the materials employed and give them as good an idea as possible of the reasons why the German were able to under sell them in this branch of manufacture. It is a matter of effort, and with proper information, the association hopes that the French manufacturers will be able to do as well as they formerly held in these articles abroad.

INTEREST OF STATE BANKS IS PLEASING

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Members of the federal reserve board feel encouraged at the interest shown by state banks in the federal reserve system. Since the federal reserve act was passed, the number of banks making inquiry has not been large, but it was said today that some of the most prominent state institutions in several big cities had shown a disposition to enter the system.

How Heat Affects the Vital Organs

Hot Weather Conduces to Chronic Constipation and Diarrhea

A disposition to confine one's diet to cold food and to indulge freely in cold drinks, is one reason why constipation and diarrhea is so prevalent in summer. There is no doubt that these disturbances should be more carefully avoided, as much serious disease is directly traceable to these conditions.

To regulate the bowels and quickly relieve even an aggravated case of constipation, the combination of simple laxative herbs with peppin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin, is highly recommended by many physicians and all those who have used it. Unlike cathartics and violent purgatives, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin has been the standard remedy in countless homes for more than thirty years, and is sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. A free trial can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 643 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Freight Steamer Launched

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., June 19.—The freight steamer Walter D. Noyes, building here for the Crowell & Threlkeld Steamship company, was launched at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon. All whistles were quiet in memory of the late A. L. Hopkins and the banquet given by the steamship officials at Old Point was a quiet affair.

Cooling Wash Stops Itching

Just a touch of this mild, soothing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription, will give you instant relief from your burning, itching skin and absolute protection from all summer skin troubles. Dr. D. D. D. is a scientific compound of soothing oil of Wintergreen and other healing elements.

It is a combination to try D. D. D. for any kind of summer skin trouble. It will give you welcome relief. A generous supply of the D. D. D. Ask also about D. D. Soap, Jacobs' Pharmacy—(Adv.)

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF PRESIDENT GETS POST

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 19.—Waynesian university trustees today appointed Prof. Stockton Axson, a brother-in-law of President Wilson, as professor of English at the university. He is to be an associate of Prof. C. T. Winchester. Prof. Axson is a Waynesian graduate and is at present connected with Rice Institute, Houston, Tex.

NOTE THESE NAMES

They Are Dealers Who Back Their Sales With Genuine Service

THESE DEALERS CAN CUT YOUR TIRE BILLS. YOU NEED SUCH SERVICE. THEY HELP YOU GUARD AGAINST TIRE TROUBLES. REAL SERVICE, THEY BELIEVE, LIES IN PREVENTION.

WHAT THESE MEN DO GET THESE PROTECTIONS

In a dozen effective ways they guard your car and tires. They know the little things that count. And they give this knowledge freely.

These men will show you ways, at little cost, to get scores of extra miles from worn-out tires. They can save you delays, trouble, annoyance.

This service is given courteously—given without delay.

So note carefully these names and addresses. You men who want Tire Convenience, Tire Service, Right Tire Prices—go to them.

THESE MEN SELL FORTIFIED TIRES

These dealers offer you the tire men want most. Sales records prove that. They give you GOODYEAR FORTIFIED TIRES—tires fortified in five exclusive ways. And they charge you RIGHT TIRE PRICES.

Goodyears are not trouble-proof tires. That's impossible. Mishaps may occur to any tire. Misuse affects the best of them. But countless motorists in the course of years have proved that Goodyears average best. As a result they outsell any other.

Goodyear policy is this: Spend in the making every dollar which can save tire users two dollars. And we spend yearly $100,000 in research and experiment alone.

One exclusive process—our "On-Air" cure—adds to our tire cost $450,000 yearly. It is used by no other maker. But it saves Goodyear users, in needless blowouts, millions of dollars yearly.

To combat rim-cutting, we embody in each Fortified Tire our costly No-Rim-Cut feature. To combat loose treads, we use a special method.

To insure safety, we vulcanize six flat bands of 126 braided piano wires in each tire base. That holds tires firmly to the rim.

To combat skidding and punctures we build our All-Weather Tread. We make it double-thick and tough. We make the grips sharp, deep and resistless.

SATISFIED USERS

Go to these dealers and ask for Goodyears. They will serve you. They get no unfair profits to "push" these tires. On most others they could make more per tire. That's why some substitute. But these men know better tires mean satisfied users, and that means PERMANENT BUSINESS.

STANLEY REPORTS ON INDUSTRIES OF STATECommissioner of Commerce and Labor Prepares Interesting Statement

Many interesting statistics and much important information of Georgia is contained in the annual report of E. M. Stanley, commissioner of commerce and labor, now in the hands of the printer.

The navigable rivers and harbors of the state are mentioned in the report and it contains many illustrations of industrial plants. The counties of the state are given separate and individual treatment with a short history of each dealing with its industries, streams, railroads, banks, etc.

Georgia ranks as a manufacturing state in the report showing Georgia leads in the manufacture of furniture, is second only to Texas in the manufacture of cotton seed products and to Florida in naval stores, is fifth in the manufacture of cotton goods, and fifth in value of food products.

The following figures for the year 1914 are taken from the report:

Cotton mills, 145; capital, $25,842,445; pounds of raw material, 1,000,000,000; value, $25,231,847; manufactured products, yards of cloth, $25,790,772; value, $45,294,145; pounds of yarn, 78,210,252; value, $1,549,000; total value, $65,794,445.

Woolen mills, 7; capital, $850,000; pounds of cotton used, 1,250,000; pounds of wool, 1,150,000; yards of cloth manufactured, 2,450,000; value, $1,923,543.

Knitting mills, 25; capital, $1,867,929; pounds of yarn, 20,822,045; dozens of hosiery manufactured, 6,665,917; value, $2,455,290; dozens of knit underwear, 274,038; value, $1,243,444; total value, $4,711,444.

Total number of cotton, woolen and knitting mills, 180; capital, $30,700,374; value of raw material, $43,008,547; value of manufactured products, $70,448,392.

In textile mills there are 2,228,872 active spindles, 12,371 looms, 6,851 carding and spinning machines, 3,724 knitting machines, 1,190 bobbins, 438 looper and 71 ribbers. Nine of them bleach, 34 of them dye their own goods. Thirty-five have power, 100 have water power, and the remainder steam.

During 1914 the cotton textile mills spent $1,461,147 for repairs and improvements and the knitting mills spent $54,150, making a total for the textile industries of $1,515,297.

In the textile mills there are 4,384 male workers under eighteen and 19,403 over eighteen, making 23,787 male workers. There are 6,121 female workers under eighteen and 11,022 over eighteen, making a total of 17,143 female workers.

The total workers in the textile mills are as follows: Cotton mills, 35,914; woolen mills, 1,000; knitting mills, 21,611; grand total, 58,525.

During the year 1914 wage earners in cotton mills were paid $1,000,000,000; in woolen mills, $25,842,445; and in knitting mills, $1,549,000; making a total of $1,027,391,445.

The highest wage paid males between four and eighteen years of age was from $4.50 to $12 per week, of age from $7.50 to $30; females between four and eighteen years of age from $4.50 to $12 per week, of age from $7.50 to $30.

The industries allied to textile mills number thirty-nine, with a capital stock of $1,000,000. The number of wage earners in these industries is 1,450, and there are 1,200 machines in use. The total expenses was $1,840,000, and the value of the manufactured products amounted to $2,440,000. The industries mentioned include manufacture of clothing, pants, overalls, shirts, and garments for women, awnings and tents.

COTTON COMPRESSERS. There are thirty-five cotton compresses in the state, with a capital of $1,120,000, working 250 white and 1,500 negro laborers. Officers and clerks drew during the year $110,000 and wage earners $250,000.

In the state there are 302 fertilizer factories and mixing plants, which used during the year 1,000,000 tons of raw material, such as phosphate, cotton seed meal, fish scrap, blood and bone, kanki, sulphuric acid, etc. The value of the raw material was $15,840,545 and the value of the manufactured product was $48,082,320. The fertilizer plants were operated by 2,500 white workers and between 2,000 and 4,000 negroes. Investment, $42,000,000.

Cotton oil mills number 187 with a capital of $14,143,000. They were used 621,684 tons of cotton seed and the total tons of fertilizer material of the oil mills was $14,239,747. They were manufactured 158,281 tons of cotton seed oil, 1,020 tons of cotton seed meal, 24,768,205 gallons of cotton seed oil, a total value of manufactured products of $30,120,000. NUMBER OF CHANGES
AT EMORY MEDICAL SCHOOLDr. W. S. Elkins Re-Elected
Dean at Executive Committee Meeting

At a meeting last Wednesday of the executive committee of the trustees of Emory university, at which were present also Bishop Warren A. Candler, chancellor of the university, and Dr. W. S. Elkins, dean of the medical school, which was taken over by the university, a reorganization of the medical faculty was effected.

Some of the members of the faculty whose terms expired were not re-elected and successors to them were named, while for others who were not re-elected no successors were named.

A member of the executive committee who was present at the election addressed very briefly the last night the cause of the changes. In the first place, he said, the faculty was too large, and this was due to the fact that the Atlanta Medical college had merged with other institutions and in doing so had taken their faculty.

Thus in one specialty there were four physicians, when the university really required but two. The executive committee, the members of which were not re-elected, would have a large private practice that to give the time to the university that would be required.

The university, this member also added, would not offer a post graduate course, so there was no need for members of the old faculty who taught specialties which could only be taught successfully at a post graduate school.

In reply to an intimation that the faculty was being reorganized along Methodist lines, this committee member pointed out that the reorganized faculty now has a total of nearly twelve members, of whom about twelve or less than half are Methodists, the rest belonging to other denominations.

The reorganization was ratified by Dean and Bishop Candler and by the committee.

Dr. W. S. Elkins was re-elected dean, and the following changes were made in the faculty:

Drs. Dunbar Roy and Phinizy Cahnoun were retained as instructors in eye, ear, nose and throat diseases, and Dr. J. M. Crawford and sons were not re-elected.

Dr. A. M. MacKinnon of the University of Mississippi, was elected to succeed Dr. Edgar Everhart in the department of obstetrics.

Dr. J. C. Davis was elected to succeed Dr. T. S. Barnett, and Dr. F. G. Hodgson was elected in place of Dr. Michael Hoke. No successor was named for Dr. E. C. Thrash and none for Dr. J. M. MacKinnon.

Dr. J. M. MacKinnon was named successor to Dr. A. L. Fowler, Dr. George F. Nisbet, Dr. J. C. Thrash and Dr. Clarence Johnson was retained. Dr. E. C. Aven, who was head of the outdoor clinic, was succeeded by Drs. Armstrong and Hinton.

REPORT ON SALOON AND CLUB LICENSES MONDAY

Police Committee Will Recommend 152 Beer Saloons and 19 Locker Clubs

The police committee will report favorably to council Monday afternoon on the applications for renewal of licenses of 152 beer saloons and nineteen locker clubs.

While no organized fight on the granting of the licenses is expected from council, interest is added to the favorable report of the committee by the fact that a mass meeting has been called for today by the Men and Religious Forward movement to protest against the licensing of the saloons and clubs by the city.

About fifty of the saloons applying for a new license carry with the saloon application a request for pool room permits.

There is some opposition in council to the practice of allowing near-beer saloons and pool rooms to operate jointly, and Mayor Woodward has indicated that he will veto any permits granted for the joint operation of saloons and pool rooms.

The mayor in a message to council and in other statements has recommended the separation of pool rooms and saloons.

It is expected there will be rather formidable opposition to several of the locker clubs, but no general fight is against all of them, or against all of the saloons.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED BY BRITISH ASSOCIATION

The adjourned annual meeting of the British association, of Atlanta, was held Friday night at the Hotel Ansley. The following officers were elected:

President, Mr. A. M. Wilson, first vice president, Mr. George Beveridge; second vice president, Mr. Frank Willy; treasurer, Mr. Park A. Dallas; secretary, Mr. R. J. McDonald; 567 Silvey building; chaplain, Rev. Vincent C. Lacy.

Directors, Mr. Grafford Jones, Dr. A. W. Stirling, Captain E. Lang, Mr. W. R. Secker, Mr. J. W. Harrett. Chairman of finance committee, Mr. Park A. Dallas; chairman of relief committee, Mr. G. E. Watts; chairman of investigating committee, Mr. Frank Willy; chairman of entertainment committee, Mr. A. A. Crain.

ANOTHER FIRE ON CORNER NEAR TERMINAL STATION

A handful of waste on the fourth floor of the building at the northwest corner of Madison avenue and Mitchell streets caught fire last night and burned harmlessly for ten minutes.

A month ago this same corner, which was then occupied by the Robinson Neckwear Company, went up in flames. Since then it has been turned over to repairers, and was getting into habitable shape when last night's little blaze broke out.

Several years ago a sweeping fire that started near this corner took in the whole vicinity and left nothing much behind it but ashes. Since then the corner has been partial to fires.

Deaths and Funerals

MR. O. P. NISBET. Mr. O. P. Nisbet, of Eatonton, Ga., secretary and treasurer of the Putnam Cotton Mills, died unexpectedly of heart trouble last night at a private sanitarium. The remains are at the undertaking establishment of Barclay & Brandon. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

MRS. EUPHENTIA PERRY. Mrs. Euphemia Perry, aged seventy-five years, died at the residence of her son, N. V. Perry, on South Moreland avenue, at midnight Friday. The funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of Harry G. Poole at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon and the body will be carried to New Haven, Conn., for interment. Besides N. V. Perry, the deceased is survived by two other sons, L. H. Perry and Harry Perry, of Connecticut and by two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Curtis, of New Haven, and Mrs. Fred McNeil, of Sidney, N. S.

MARVIS GUY. Marvis Guy, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Guy, died at the residence in Inman Yard Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The body will be carried to Maun, Ga., at 7 o'clock Sunday morning for funeral and interment.

MRS. MARY CHRISTOPHER. Mrs. Mary Christopher, aged eighty-four, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at her residence in East Point. Funeral services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence. Interment will be at Hill Crest cemetery. Three sisters and one brother survive Mrs. Christopher. Mrs. Adeline Hagedale, Mrs. Caroline McCoughline, Miss Harriett Smith and James Smith.

MAZIE GUY. Mazie, two years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Guy, died Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the residence of her parents on Main street in Inman Yard. The funeral will be held Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at Harry G. Poole's chapel. Interment will be at Maun, Ga.

IRVIN DISHROON. Irvin Dishroon, age twelve years, of Roanoke, Ala., died at a private sanitarium here Saturday afternoon. He is survived by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. B. Dishroon, two brothers, Henry and Hugh Dishroon and a sister, Miss Mary Dishroon. The body was removed to the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son and will be carried to Roanoke on Sunday morning.

MR. JAMES J. STEVENSON. Mr. James J. Stevenson, aged sixty-two years, died at his residence, 65 Central place, on Saturday. The body has been removed to the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, where the funeral services will be conducted by Dean Atkinson at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The interment will be at West View cemetery. The deceased is survived by his wife. He was a member of Atlanta lodge 55 F. & A. M.

MRS. R. L. PEOPLES. Mrs. R. L. Peoples, wife of Rev. R. L. Peoples, formerly the pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church in Atlanta, but now of Wrightsville, Ga., died at home in Wrightsville on Saturday at noon after a short illness. Mrs. Peoples leaves a number of relatives in Watson, Mo., and many friends in Atlanta and other places, where she and Dr. Peoples have resided.

DOROTHY BAILEY. Dorothy, the ten-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. King Bailey, died last night at the residence, 169 North Jackson street. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

You Need Not Spend a Cent to Win Any of the Following Presents

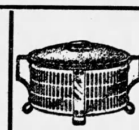

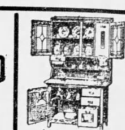

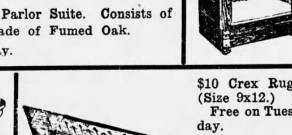

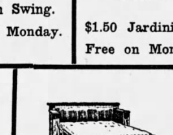

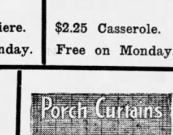

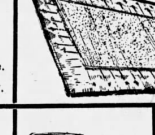

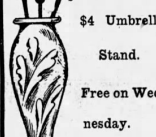

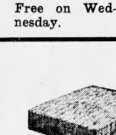

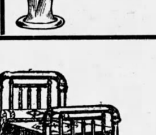

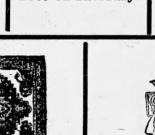

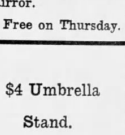

To celebrate our removal to 122 Whitehall street, just south of Mitchell street, we shall have a Grand Opening, this week, starting tomorrow. Thirty six valuable presents will be given away ABSOLUTELY FREE--during the week, starting tomorrow.

Every day this week-- from 8 A. M. till 10 A. M.--starting tomorrow (Monday)--we will give to every lady who calls at our new store, at 122 Whitehall street, just south of Mitchell street, a numbered coupon which will entitle her to a FREE chance to win one of the valuable articles listed below. At 10 o'clock sharp each day, there will be a drawing--and the lucky numbers will be immediately announced. Six presents will be given away ABSOLUTELY FREE every day. THIRTY-SIX presents will be given during the week.

You need NOT spend a single penny to win one or more presents--all you need to do is to call at our store any time between 8 and 10 A. M. to get your FREE coupon and to be present at 10 o'clock that morning when the winning numbers are announced. Coupons will be given only to ladies--none will be given to children or to men.

A lady may win only ONE present on one day--but she is entitled to a FREE chance on other presents during each other day of the week. We invite all the ladies to come EVERY day and to get FREE chances for the valuable gifts we shall give away FREE, EVERY day this week--starting tomorrow. Come every day between 8 and 10 A. M. We shall deliver all the presents at your home, anywhere in Atlanta.

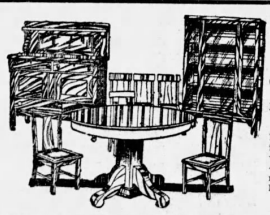

We are giving these valuable presents FREE because we want you all to come and get acquainted with our new store--in other words, we do it to ADVERTISE the new store of MYERS-MILLER Furniture Co. So, be sure to come tomorrow morning between 8 and 10 A. M.--also on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings. Here is an illustrated list of the presents which we are going to give away FREE--at our new store at 122 Whitehall St., just south of Mitchell St.:

CITY SALESMEN TO LEAVE THIS WEEK ON BIG ANNUAL OUTING

Rousing Time Expected at Isle of Palms—Retail Men
Promise to Order by Telephone During Vacation Week

Atlanta city salesmen are planning for a big outing at the Isle of Palms next week. They will leave Atlanta in a special train of two sections Friday night. There will be plenty of sleeping accommodations in one section of the train and the other will be made up of day coaches.

The committee on arrangements, consisting of Paul Paus, H. L. Thomas, C. F. Holt and J. C. Harrison, has made extensive plans for the entertainment of the salesmen, who will stop at the Isle of Palms hotel.

While the salesmen are away the Atlanta Retail Grocers and Butchers' association will make their plans to go to the jobs by telephone, having agreed to co-operate in every way in regard to the salesmen's absence.

LOWNEY'S CHOCOLATES IN MANY NEW STYLES

New Packages Add to Popularity of Candies—Many Summer Orders

The always popular Lowney's chocolates are making more friends than ever now and orders are coming in rapidly for W. F. King & Co. for the many new packages that they have just put out.

W. H. Arnold was in King & Co.'s office last week with an especially big lunch of orders.

T. B. Everett, manager for F. W. King & Co., last week showed a Florida line representative through the big store in which the Lowney's candies are temporarily kept before shipment.

The temperature of the room is always at 70 degrees or lower, thereby insuring freshness and crispness in the candies at all times.

"The fact that we get in a fresh shipment of candy every day and are constantly sending out shipments to supply orders, ensures freshness, and we never have to keep a consignment here but a short while. Despite this, however, we are always careful to keep the candies at a temperature low enough to prevent them from losing any of their qualities."

The famous Lowney's "Crest" chocolate are being put up in a new square pound box, which retails at 11¢. The "Crest" chocolates are packed in boxes ranging in weight from one-half to five pounds, and are most attractively put up.

The "Blended" brand, which retails for 80 cents, is put up in boxes ranging from one to five pounds, and the "Delecta" chocolates and bonbons, retailing at 80 cents a pound, are being put up in new style packages. One of the most popular new numbers is a 10-cent package of fruits, nuts and creams.

M. W. MASON HER WITH AMERICAN REALTY CO.

M. W. Mason, of Columbia, S. C., has become temporarily associated with the American Realty company of this city, with offices at 214 Empire building.

Mr. Mason is one of the most successful men engaged in the development of suburban real estate in the south. For some years located at Norfolk, Va., he succeeded in building two suburbs that each today number several thousand inhabitants. He was at all times most active and efficient in promoting new industries, without which no city can enjoy permanent and active development.

H. J. Atwood, the wide-awake traveler of McCord-Stewart company, was at headquarters at 214 Empire building, Mr. Atwood has his rounds in an automobile. His firm declares that all he now needs to make him a very happy man is a wife, as he has already secured a new car. Being a bachelor, he needs a companion to share it with him when he is not upon his business rounds.

SALES OF MOWERS AND BINDERS NOW VERY ACTIVE

"There are evidently big crops of grain and hay in this section this year," said H. T. Bell, of the John Deere Plow company. "We judge that these crops are large from the demand we have for binders, mowers, and hay rakes. Our sales of these machines at present are very large. In fact, we want to sell all we can get into the house."

Broyles Is Honored At National Meet Of T. P. A. in Omaha

Atlanta Man Elected National Railroad Chairman for the South-eastern District—Delegates on Way Home

R. A. Broyles, of Atlanta, was elected national railroad chairman for the southeastern district at a national convention of the Travelers' Protective association held in Omaha, Neb., during the past week.

This information was conveyed in a telegram to the Fring Line signed by E. A. Hartwig, R. D. McDonald, J. F. Fair and P. E. Cashman, who attended the convention. The telegram stated that the Atlanta delegation was on its way home and reported a fine convention.

ROSENFELD SALESMEN
SENDING IN GOOD ORDERS

All the Rosenfeld company's salesmen are out on the road now and many of them are reporting exceptionally good orders. Mr. J. Kent, vice president of the company, who recently became sales manager, has left for a trip through the various territories served by his company.

ANTI-TIPPING BILL WILL BE PRESENTED TO GA. LEGISLATURE

Georgia traveling men are greatly interested in the anti-tipping bill which will be presented at the coming session of the Georgia legislature, advocates of the measure pointing with much pride to a similar measure which went into effect in South Carolina on July 1, after having been passed with the indorsement of the United Commercial Travelers.

At its recent meeting at Gainesville the grand council of the Georgia-Florida United Commercial Travelers named R. C. McClinton and W. A. Webb to head a committee to co-operate with a committee from the Georgia Travelers' Protective association in framing and urging the passage of an anti-tipping bill in this state. This bill has been framed largely along the same lines as that of South Carolina, making tipping a misdemeanor for the receiver as well as the giver, and was presented at the last state Travelers' Protective association meeting by Dennis Fleming, of Albany.

The past year shows this great body of commercial travelers with an increase in membership, in face of the unfavorable business conditions existing during the past year, the gain in membership having surpassed that of many years.

FRUIT JARS EXPERIENCE
INCREASE IN PRICE

With the coming of the first fruits, both the wholesalers and retailers are beginning to look forward to the fruit jar season. They are pointing out the fact that fruit jars will be much higher this year than heretofore, due to the increased cost in all materials used in the manufacture of fruit jars. The rise in cost is occasioned by trade conditions brought about by the European war.

DOBBES & WEY TO GIVE
Before War Prices
On Imported Wares

Customers of Dobbes & Wey company are to get the benefit of before-the-war prices on a big lot of imported wares. This week a contingent of expert salesmen will go out handling a big shipment of Johnson Bros' English ware, which has just come in. In addition to this new line they will have attractive offerings in domestic wares, fruit jars, etc.

"This big shipment of Johnson Bros' English ware was bought before the war broke out," said W. L. Percy, of Dobbes & Wey Co. "After the outbreak of war the consignment was held for quite a while and we have just got it in from England. It comes to us at prices which prevailed before the war and which are a great deal lower than present prices. We intend to give our customers the full benefit of this. As a matter of fact, this famous ware is hard to get now at any price."

Those who will go out next week with Johnson Bros' English ware are E. E. Fulton, J. W. O'Donnell, E. H. James and Jeter Weems.

Delegates Off to Supreme Council U. C. T. Meeting

R. L. Wallace, W. A. Freeman and E. D. Weir Will Represent Georgia and Florida at Meeting to Be Held Tuesday

The representatives to the supreme council, United Commercial Travelers, from Georgia-Florida jurisdiction leave today for Columbus, Ohio, where the twenty-sixth annual meeting convenes on Tuesday morning. This jurisdiction having three representatives this year, elected R. S. Wallace, of Atlanta; W. A. Freeman, of Macon, and E. D. Weir, of Athens, to represent them.

Many matters of importance will come before the supreme council this year, and practically the entire week will be consumed with their meeting. The past year shows this great body of commercial travelers with an increase in membership, in face of the unfavorable business conditions existing during the past year, the gain in membership having surpassed that of many years.

NEW LINES NEXT FALL FOR CAPITAL CITY TOBACCO CO.

Interesting Announcement to Trade Probably Will Be Made Soon

W. B. Carlton, president of the Capital City Tobacco company, has just returned from New York, where he spent some time looking over prospective new lines. It is very likely that a number of new lines will be added in the fall.

Mr. Carlton is very optimistic over the business outlook and states that the Capital City Tobacco company's figures for May this year were practically the same as those for the corresponding month of last year, which was an exceptionally good one.

"We are looking forward to a good fall," said Mr. Carlton, "and are making all preparations for it. We are not ready yet to announce what new lines we will have but hope to do so soon." Mr. Carlton expects to leave in a few days for the territory covered by T. R. Lewis, who is at present enjoying a vacation.

DRY GOODS MEN SEE EXCELLENT OUTLOOK FOR TRADE IN SOUTH

Third Division of Southern Wholesale Association Holds
Enthusiastic Convention at Piedmont Hotel

With an excellent representation present the third division of the Southern Wholesale Drygoods association, comprising the states of Georgia, Florida and South Carolina, met at the Piedmont hotel in executive session, Friday afternoon.

The visiting merchants were decidedly optimistic over the business outlook. They reported crops good, collections better, and prospects generally far from being discouraging.

Among the special guests of the convention were H. V. Covington, of Jacksonville, Fla., former president of the association; Norman H. Johnson, of Richmond, Va., at present secretary of the Southern Wholesale Drygoods association; Frank Bentley, Tampa, Fla.; Philip Hofmeyer, Albany, Ga.; and Edwin Epstein, Savannah, Ga.

The convention was presided over by J. R. Little of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, of Atlanta. The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock to meet again for a banquet in the evening, local jobbers being hosts. At the banquet Norman H. Johnson, of the Southern association, made a characteristically splendid speech.

Those present at the convention were Walter C. Barnwell of the Ragan-Malone company, J. D. Robinson of the A. M. Robinson company, Henry W. Wyatt and Charles C. J. of the Southern Wholesale Drygoods association; R. V. Covington, of Jacksonville, Fla.; C. E. Epstein, Savannah, of the Epstein Brothers company; R. V. Covington, of Jacksonville, Fla.; C. E. # THE LIFE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

TRAVELING MEN GOOD GUESSERS, SAYS LEWIS

Smith & Higgins Was Firm Referred to in Articles in Firing Line

The following is the last of a series of articles by E. P. Lewis, sales manager of the Smith & Higgins firm, which have attracted much attention among merchants and traveling men. Mr. Lewis began by telling how a merchant, whose name he did not disclose, started with five hundred dollars capital, spending four hundred for stock and one hundred for expenses, and eventually achieved a net profit of $10,000. The following article, Mr. Lewis tells how the firm is now doing.

While I have withheld the name of the firm I have been writing of until the last minute, I find that merchants and traveling men are pretty good at guessing.

Today I take pleasure in informing the readers of The Journal that the firm I have referred to in the two previous articles is none other than the well known and widely advertised firm of Smith & Higgins, of 254 Peters street. Twenty years ago J. B. Smith and W. J. Higgins opened business in a building 21,600 feet, with a capital of $500, and worked as clerks, bookkeepers, office boys and porters combined. Today they own the building they occupy, which is a ten-story building 60,000 feet, and is equipped with all modern conveniences, such as electricity, elevator service and telephone. The service is so good that trained people are employed at the present.

Week's close observation and study of this firm's systematic method of doing business would be worth more dollars to the ordinary merchant.

I am sure that my friends and readers join me in extending hearty congratulations to these two gentlemen, and wish them still greater things for the future.

BROWER CO. IS MAKING CONES IN THREE FLAVORS

Chocolate, Strawberry and Pound Cake Cones Proving Popular

Have you seen the new fashions in ice cream cones?

The Brower Candy company is making them now to make them the cream, and they are all the go.

On a recent trip to Cincinnati W. A. Brower, head of the Brower Candy company, was so attracted by the wide variety of the different flavors and flavors of cones, that on his return he installed special machinery for making them and produced the best sort of cones. The fact that he is not making strawberry cones and chocolate cones are the name cones as these two kinds of ice cream, and of third cone made of pure pound cake batter.

These cones are made of a water like substance which is very attractive and is said to be thoroughly digestible. They are also very delicious and the best of waters and although new to the south are already achieving wide popularity.

C. H. S. FACTORY HAS MANY FUTURE DELIVERY ORDERS

The factory owned by Val M. Antonio, one of the largest and best up to date of its kind in the country, is one of the busiest in Florida these days, all due to the popularity of the C. H. S. cigars. Mr. Antonio, with a large factory and cigar-manufacturing experience, has made the "C. H. S." brand known and used everywhere. So this is probably the reason why the future delivery orders at the factory is sufficiently crowded to insure heavy orders. Mr. Antonio, general representative of the brand for the entire United States, is closer the interests of "C. H. S." distributors with the aims of the manufacturer. Mr. Antonio's southern tour trip was the most profitable, in point of orders, that he has ever made.

ATLANTA CIGARETTES AT SPEEDWAY BANQUET

The White House hotel at Sheepshead Bay, L. I., was the scene of a large banquet on the evening of May 12, given by the board of trade to the Promoters and Builders of the Sheepshead Bay Motor Speedway. The New York factory of Themelis Bros. company, manufacturers of Themelis rose-tipped cigarettes, was given a large order for this brand of cigarettes and they were distributed at the banquet.

H. Patterson, exclusive agent for the famous C. H. S. cigars, has been recently given Themelis cigarettes that he has with the cigars. A large distributor on the western coast recently gave Themelis Bros. company factory in New York an order for Rose-Tip cigarettes.

ALL-STAR HAS BEST JUNE IN HISTORY

W. O. Steele of the All Star Manufacturing company, makers of high grade neckwear, reports that the present time so far has been the best June in the company's business. Mail orders have been coming in from all over the country for this firm's well known lines of neckwear. Last week also the firm received a large shipment of material for use in making Palm Beach ties and other summer neckwear.

RICE & HUTCHINS LOOK ACTIVE FALL BUSINESS

"June 1 marks the beginning of our fall season," said E. G. Thomas, of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company, at the beginning of the fall season we have put aside all past troubles and all past fears and are looking forward with confidence in the future and with the expectation of doing a very active trade in the coming autumn, with the "Uncertainty" to be as fearful as possible.

BANQUET CIGARETTE OF THEMELIS BROS. POPULAR

Reports from the various big cities and remote regions where it is sold state that the Themelis Brothers company new banquet cigarette, in the rose-tipped brand, is growing more popular every day.

This cigarette, which has been on the market for three weeks, is made by hand. It retails at 50 cents for a box of ten.

HOW THAT PICKLE MAN IS PICKLING ORDERS!

J. W. Jasper, of Knodler & Lucas, Here—"Best Trade Ever," Says He

J. W. Jasper, representing Knodler & Lucas, the Louisville pickle manufacturers, is in Atlanta during the week of the H. L. Singer company, the Knodler & Lucas distributors in this territory. Mr. Jasper declares that the growing demand for his pickles is the very noticeable. He has visited a number of the largest cities of the south, and states that business has been the best with him that he has ever known. The increased demand he attributes to the growing popularity of the Knodler & Lucas products, and also to the fact that just now is the picnic and cold lunch season, in which pickles are largely used. In fact it may be said that the summer months constitute the best season.

Mr. Jasper will be in Atlanta a total of two weeks and expects within that time to sell at least five cartloads of his pickles. From the way he has been apparent, he will be entirely successful. When he leaves Atlanta he will go to Jacksonville, Fla., and then down the Florida coast and on to Cuba. He will spend some time in Havana and Cuba working the trade.

His company, he has had a number of inquiries for his products from Cuban firms.

"Bishop" Proves Adventurousome When Abroad

H. A. McDonald, of McCord-Stewart company, otherwise known as "The Bishop," is at present away on a trip to the Pacific coast and Central America, where he is visiting M. C. Kierulff, who was recently by his firm marked Puerto Tluma, Mexico. "I mean that was my trip," said the Bishop, "I have been properly tagged and sent with proper shipping documents," said Mr. McDonald, "I have been to the Pacific coast and Central America, and now we hear from him in California. He does not doubt we will hear from him next either in Germany or Turkey. The Bishop" is quite an adventurous traveler when he goes abroad.

'Twas BUSY WEEK AT RAGAN-MALONE CO.

Putty and Sand Shade Hosiery Much in Demand—Goods Being Received

"We have been quite busy at the office during the past week," said W. C. Ragan, head of Ragan-Malone company, "getting out special advertising matter, acquiring new customers and doing a lot of business, especially desirable at this time of the year. We particularly present our putty and sand shades. There has been a strong demand for these throughout the week."

"We are also receiving a large shipment of fall goods, including the new kind of ice cream, and of third cone made of pure pound cake batter. These cones are made of a water like substance which is very attractive and is said to be thoroughly digestible. They are also very delicious and the best of waters and although new to the south are already achieving wide popularity."

'ICED COFFEE TO GAIN POPULARITY AS DRINK'

"I am continuing to receive more and more orders for iced coffee, it is to become the popular summer drink," said P. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company. "I mention this because of the fact that iced coffee was gaining in popularity in many parts of the United States, and that it would soon find favor in the south."

"This week I received a circular from the National Coffee Roasters' association in which they present an attractive number of advertising cards portraying the merits and delights of iced coffee. The circular goes on to say that iced coffee is not only a healthful, but a very refreshing drink during the summer months. There are many drinks known as the 'national drink,' but iced coffee seems to be the 'national drink' for summer."

SAMS TALKS OF GRASS AND SERV-US LINE GOODS

Jake Sams, traveling salesman for Kayser Brothers company, says the people in the out-of-town districts are demanding Serv-US goods and are hard to satisfy with anything else. He says the farmers are very busy indeed clearing the crops of grass which are hard to cut with anything else. He declares that notwithstanding this fact the crop of grass is good and the demand for Serv-US goods has rarely been so high.

CLARK RECOVERS AND IS BACK ON ROAD

R. J. Clark, Mississippi traveler of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, who has been ill for some time, has recovered and is back on the road. The firm received a number of fine orders from him last week. His first week out since his recovery, W. D. Mathis of the house of the Orr company, who covered Mr. Clark's territory during his illness, has returned to headquarters. The business sent in by him was very satisfactory.

At the meeting this afternoon an address will be delivered by A. F. Todd, who has spent much time recently in Mexico.

Mrs. T. H. Jackson will play and there will be songs by Mr. Sewell and Miss Clara Dunn.

Gideon is honored this year by having a national trustee in the person of C. H. Burge, who was chosen at the Boston meeting last year. Plans are being made to entertain all of the national trustees during the coming convention.

"WHEAT BREAD STILL THE CHEAPEST FOOD"

Flour Dealer Points Out the High Food Values in Wheat Bread

McCord-Stewart company is pointing to the fact that notwithstanding the high price of flour, it is still one of the cheapest foods to be found, considering the number of muscle and strength building units it possesses.

Government tests show that one pound of flour contains three to four cents, and will go as far as two pounds of meat costing 20 or 25 cents.

In fact, among a large number of food products, including eggs, milk, beef, potatoes and beans, wheat flour has the greatest number of food units. The United States Department of Agriculture has shown that ten cents will buy 6,640 units of energy in wheat flour, which is several thousand units more than any other food mentioned.

E. M. Hudson, of this company, contends that wheat bread is the best food on earth, in spite of the cost of flour, the people economize when they use flour, even though it is now at high price. He states that meat costing 20 or 25 cents water, potatoes 75 per cent, milk 80 to 90 per cent, while flour contains only 13 1/2 per cent.

He also declares that real economy means the use of more flour, and he states among the best flours to be found anywhere, containing the highest ratio of energy producing units, are the flours sold under the McCord-Stewart brands.

Bill Beacham, of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, after an illness of three or four weeks, returned to the road last week. He reports everything in his territory looking fine and trade outlook bright for fall.

P. D. Yates and W. J. Hays, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, made a special trip to the north Georgia territory on last Friday.

C. J. Williamson, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, sold a big bill on last Friday to a visiting south Georgia merchant.

C. W. McClure, of the McClure Ten Cent company, is away on a trip to Chicago, Boston and New York.

Friday was the biggest Palm Beach suit day that Ragan-Malone company has ever known. Orders came in from all over the territory.

The distributors for the C. H. S. cigars are sending out a little book entitled "Vals" C. H. S. Havana Smiles," which is very interesting to the ladies as well as the men.

The 10-cent Perfecto is a mild and intensive smoke, and their fame has been raised abroad, is evidenced by inquiry received by Mr. R. H. Patterson, exclusive sales agent for the C. H. S. cigars from the Hilo gear Store, Hawaii, H. I.

J. L. Williams, of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company, will leave tonight for an extensive trip. This is a special trip, and he will make to the trade some of the best offerings the company has presented this season.

Fred Thomas, of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company, on last Friday made a special trip on the Southern railroad. He was very successful and returned with a large number of orders.

G. A. Cochran, city salesman for the H. L. Singer company, last week sold a nice opening bill to an Atlanta merchant.

The All-Star Manufacturing company reports that mail orders are still coming in steadily. The company last week received a big order from Clemson college for neckties.

Give the Clerk Something to TELL As Well as to SELL.

The clerk who gets away with the most sales is the clerk who knows the most about the goods.

He doesn't have to be a gas-bag, you understand. But he does have to be intelligent as well as loquacious.

All the Big Merchants have found that out.

Schools for clerks are no uncommon thing these days.

Reading just the other day about Saks & Company, New York City. They are getting up a series of sales lectures for their clerks.

These sales lectures will tell facts about the merchandise they are selling.

Manufacturers of goods which Saks & Company retail are to be asked for facts about manufacturing processes, etc.

"When a customer asks how Dolly Varden voile got its name, I want our saleswomen to be able to reply correctly," said the advertising manager.

The Rexall people are doing something similar—on a correspondingly larger scale. They are teaching their selling force SELLING POINTS.

Selling points are facts about the goods—where they are from, how they are made, what they are for, and such-like facts.

The more you can tell your customer about the goods the better your hold on him.

Just suppose that every clerk in every Georgia store selling goods to Georgia people had the privilege of selling HOME MANUFACTURED GOODS—

And suppose that every clerk KNEW about these goods—their history, their process of production, their importance in the industrial life of this section—

WOULDN'T THAT CLERK HAVE THE MATERIAL WITH WHICH TO INTEREST HIS CUSTOMERS?

There are just as many GOOD SELLING POINTS about the goods made in Georgia as about any goods in the world.

And there is always the added appeal of HOME PRODUCTION. That's always a puller when properly presented.

Give your clerks a chance, Merchants, to put some real TALK into their selling.

Give 'em HOME MANUFACTURED GOODS to sell and let them put the punch in the proposition.

"Made right here in our own state!"

"Bought close to home—costs less to get it here."

"If home folks don't patronize home factories, we'll just naturally dry up. Bad for the community."

That's the way they could go after it.

We manufacturers would be glad to tell any enterprising merchant or clerk everything there is to know about our products. Write us if you want to know.

The HOME PRODUCTS idea is taking root—good, deep root.

The merchants and the salesmen who know the most about these products are going to sell the most of them.

And the by-product will be better business in every department.

Signs of The Times

While with each day names are being added to the list of Georgians who are leaving for the far west to attend the Panama-Pacific exposition, the polo matches and other interesting features that are proving such pleasant diversions of the summer at San Francisco, there are equally as many who have decided to forego trips to mountains and shore and to spend the summer in Atlanta. With invitations issued during the past week by Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Adair to the initial one of the swimming parties that will prove such delightful events of the next few months, midsummer in the city has fairly begun. That Atlanta swimming is beyond the question of a doubt, and it is safe to predict that the swimming parties will be the favorite form of amusement for the rest of the season. During the past few days the lakes at the Capital City Country club and at the East Lake Country club have presented an animated scene with gaily clad mermaids swimming and diving into the cool depths. These informal parties are followed by parties at the various clubs where special arrangements have been made for informal dining after golf and the water sports. Every evening congenial parties motor out to the broad breezy sweep of the country clubs or ascend to the roof garden of the town club for music and dancing. These dinner dances will be continued through the summer and will offer opportunity for pleasant reunion for members and friends.

To Mrs. Foster

The Matrons club will entertain at the Druid Hills Golf club Tuesday, in compliment to Mrs. W. A. Foster, who made the highest score of the year. Mrs. George W. Seay entertained the club members at a matinee party at the Forsyth theater Thursday.

Afternoon Tea

An event of the past week among the younger set was the informal tea given Friday afternoon at the Piedmont club by Miss Henrietta Tipper. Tea was served on the terrace at the center of a mound of rose pink gladioli and the same pretty tints of the summer flowers were continued in the loes and bonbons. The young hostess wore a dainty gown of white organdy and a flower-laden hat and Mrs. Charles A. Elson and Mrs. Carleton Smith both wore pretty afternoon gowns of mauve and lace.

Book Party

Miss Rubie Herring entertained at a book party Friday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Thomas Loyd, of Montgomery, Ala. The house was effectively decorated with roses and bright colored nasturtiums. The guests were Miss Joe Lee Murdoch, Miss Ora Gay, Miss Jessie Rambo, Miss Sadie and Rinchella Brewer, Miss Irene Bond, Miss James Ivy, Mrs. Thomas Loyd, Miss Annie Laurie Herring, Miss Rubie Herring and Miss Beale Herring.

CHARMING YOUNG MATRON

MRS. ROBERT RIDLEY, JR.

A charming member of the young married contingent, who was Miss Bert Render of LaGrange before her marriage. The country home of Dr. and Mrs. Ridley in Decatur is the scene of much pleasant entertaining.

Interesting Wedding Plans

Harris-Gardner Wedding Plans
The wedding of Miss Ruth Harris and Mr. Frank Hugh Gardner will be one of the interesting weddings of this week, taking place at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. S. Hamilton, "Red Hill," in Decatur.

The ceremony will be at 9 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, June 22. Mrs. T. C. Harris will be matron of honor and Miss Bertha Gardner maid of honor. Mr. William L. Percy will be best man.

Little Miss Dorothy Hamilton, Miss Margaret Cowan, Jack Cowan and Burton Harris, the little nieces and nephews of the bride, will be ribbon bearers, and little Miss Elizabeth Harris ring bearer. Mr. Hamilton will give the bride in marriage and Rev. Jere W. Moore will officiate.

Miss Harris is originally from Tennessee and has only made her home in Decatur the last few years. She is a graduate of Georgia Tech and connected with Pratt Engineering company, is one of the most prominent young engineers in Atlanta.

The wedding has been preceded by a number of affairs. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton entertained at a buffet supper last evening, inviting the attendants, relatives and a few intimate friends.

Travelers Aid Work
At the meeting of the Atlanta Women's Missionary Association, held on the second Wednesday of this month, at the Central Congregational church, the reports of the Travelers Aid work by the matrons at the railroad stations were read, and they showed a wonderful amount of help given. A total of 700 men, women and children were taken care of. Seven were sent to the hospital, 109 were referred to suitable boarding houses or lodging places, work was found for five, and five were sent to the Y. W. C. homes, there to be welcomed with board and room, seven went to the Y. M. C. A. Thirty-six were advised to go to the Volunteers of America, a doctor was called to attend a sick baby, giving his services free, and lunches were provided for thirty-seven with sundry cups of coffee besides.

At this meeting also it was unanimously voted to accept individual members, annual dues to be not less than twenty-five cents and as much more as desired by the person joining, there to be associated members. Some took advantage of this opportunity and joined at the close of the meeting. The treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Mandfield, will gladly receive all such members. Also it is hoped that all the churches of the city will become supporting members and contribute stated amount monthly.

Meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month at the Central Congregational church.

The June of Brides

June, O June, is white with brides, Snowy billows, flowing tide, Of white, of white, of dainty feet, Of face and flower and joy and cheer— The June, the June of brides, is here.

The world, the world is white with them, The flounce, the frill, the diadem, The veil, the bloom, the light of life, The girl, the maid, the wedded wife, Across the world in June they smile, The world is white with brides each mile.

Up, morn, and kiss with lips of dew, The bride that waits to welcome you, Bow, night, and with thy arms of rest, Close close close unto your mothering breast, The little child of June that smiles, Wears bridal roses on the brow! Brave men and young, be sweet for these, That are the flower of ecstasies, Where all the world is white, so white With brides, brides of June that smile, And in the morning of love's dream, See all the destined aye gleam!

$1.00 Per Week

ONLY 30 Cabinets to Be Sold

Why Wish and Wait? ---It's Yours Now

Sooner or later you are going to buy a good kitchen cabinet. You naturally rebel at useless kitchen labor, long hours and thousands of extra steps.

Even now you are dreading the coming summer's heat. Why not be guided by the judgment of over 800,000 Hoosier owners? They have solved your work problem.

With a Hoosier you can sit down at your work. You overcome summer heat and escape excessive toil merely by putting into your kitchen now

The Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet

Saves Miles of Steps

Thousands of women all over the country are buying Hoosiers this month to escape summer drudgery. They have the joy of a Hoosier all summer long. By the time summer is over all the little payments will have been made, and their Hoosier works for them a lifetime free.

Inspect the Hoosier yourself and you will be convinced that you should not go through the summer months without the relief it brings.

One cabinet lasts you a lifetime if you select the Hoosier.

As an example of its quality, $100,000 extra every year goes into the pure aluminum on the tables alone. Yet, enormous sales everywhere have brought the cost of each cabinet down to an insignificant sum.

The quality of the Hoosier you buy from us is backed by this famous guarantee: "Your money back unless you are delighted with your Hoosier." So when you buy your kitchen cabinet, choose the Hoosier. You'll never make a better investment.

This Week $1.00 Puts the Hoosier in Your Home

We will deliver a Hoosier to your home this week if you merely pay us $1—a few pennies a day for a short time completes the low cash price. No extra fees or interest. Why wish and wait when merely a dollar gives you afternoon freedom instead of all-day drudgery? This famous Hoosier Cabinet Plan was initiated solely to enable you and every other woman to get a Hoosier the minute you know you would like to have it.

For tomorrow only we are going to sell one hundred of these splendid bonized handled imported nicked Carving Sets that sell everywhere for 75 cents, for only

Only One Hundred at That Price

We are showing one of the most reliable and economical lines of Furniture that we have ever exhibited, and you will do well to look our line over.

Don't fail to come early tomorrow (Monday) and get a Hoosier—a simple little dollar will do much for you.

Give the Women a Chance

Get them away from the hot stoves this summer as much as possible. Give them an opportunity to get out in the cool air on the porch, or take a ride in the machine during the afternoon.

How nice it would be for the men to know that their wives were cool and comfortable, instead of roasting in a hot kitchen.

Summer Cooking Shouldn't Cook the Cook

Getting dinner ready in July is just as comfortable as in November. If you use a FLORENCE OIL COOK STOVE.

You can keep one or four burners at an intensely hot or merely simmering flame. The heat goes upward, not outward into the kitchen. It does your work well and reliably, and keeps you comfortable. It requires less watching and regulating than a coal stove.

To change the heat, you merely turn a simple little (patented) lever device.

There are no wicks nor valves. The oil supply is automatically constant. The flame is blue and of extraordinary heat.

Prices $10 to $25

Retrospect of The Past Week

THE southern golf championship tournament held during the past week at the East Lake country club centered the interest of hundreds of visitors to the picturesque links to watch the matches each day. Every afternoon and evening an orchestra furnished a bright musical program and some of the parties were entertained at some of the many staying for supper and the dance which was a feature of each evening. The hospitality of the club was extended to the membership of the other social clubs in the city and the large dinner club and Saturday evening brought to a brilliant climax the social side of the tournament.

While the tournament for the men at East Lake was in progress the Capital City club management arranged a tournament for the ladies over the Brookhaven course. Mrs. Edna Johnson, Mrs. William Tilt and Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr., had this in charge, making the event one of great interest to the many enthusiastic women golfers who participated.

Owing to the full golfing activities at the East Lake course, an invitation to the Capital City club was given to the ladies of the Capital City club who also during the three days of the tournament a dinner dance was given each night and every afternoon the tournament was filled with guests enjoying the bright musical program rendered by a string orchestra.

Many of the visiting golfers and other attractive out-of-town guests were present at the opening of the Capital City roof garden Tuesday evening, which was marked by a dinner dance assembling over 500 guests. At the tea dance Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club many bright parties were entertained and again on Saturday evening at the Piedmont club a number of guests were present for the final weekend dinner dance.

TWO prominent weddings of the week around which centered a wide social interest was that of Miss Louise King Black and Mr. John Pitts MacDougall, which was solemnized Wednesday evening at All Saints Episcopal church, and that of Miss Jane Thornton and Mr. Alfred D. Kennedy, of Greenville, S. C., which took place Thursday evening at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Albert Edward Thornton, on Peachtree street.

For the nuptial ceremony of Miss Black and Mr. MacDougall, All Saints church was beautifully decorated in the minutiae of stately Easter lilies which showed in lovely contrast against a background of cool green foliage plants. An arch of waxen petals flanked the altar and tall vases of Easter lilies lent an artistic touch.

The bride's only attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ralph Peters Black, and she was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ralph Peters Black, and she was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ralph Peters Black, and she was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ralph Peters Black.

BY ISABELLE ORMOND THOMAS.

IS the average woman inconsiderate? Or, is it, perhaps, that a certain lack of thought and narrowness of viewpoint combine to make this uncomfortable quality that meets a person at every turn in life?

A certain woman very well known in mercantile circles attained to a great success, a success that was later estimated by the number of figures attached to her balance in bank. She was sought out by neighbors for her comfortable office by an ambitious girl just entering the business world, who asked a practical question of her rise to influence and power.

"To what do I owe business success?" answered the older woman thoughtfully. "I can give you the answer in a sentence.

"To look at the subject through the eyes of the other person's place."

"I started life in a department store. From a modest beginning as clerk, I became head of the ready-to-wear in a great northern store. From a modest beginning as clerk, I became head of the ready-to-wear in a great northern store.

"I studied my customers."

"Very soon I knew the frequenter of the store thoroughly from the woman of fashion to the representative of the great middle class on whom the profit of the store depends."

"What were my discoveries?"

"Several. First, that among the women, thoughtlessness and heedlessness characterized the great majority, while clever rogues were in the minority."

"From the beginning of my first month as head of the department, I came appalled at the steady increase of the garments sent out on approval to customers of unscrupulous credit and later brought back, mused, wrinkled, in some cases slightly soiled, in a few others, damaged, almost beyond recognition."

"In one year (those damaged goods amounted to nearly fifty thousand dollars loss."

Week In Atlanta Movies

Chaplin in New Comedy at Vaudette and Alamo Two-Barrymore at Grand-Chaplin and Keystone at Alamo One. "Who Pays" Drama at Montgomery and Alpha-Max Figman and Other Stars at Strand-Three World Film Favorites at Victoria

CHARLIE CHAPLIN is a new Essanay comedy; John Barrymore in a Richard Harding Davis play; the return of "Hypocrites"; another "Who Pays" drama; numerous Keystone comedies; Max Figman in a new fun-producer; and Beatriz Michelena in "Mignon"—these are some of the announcements of interest to be gleaned from this week's movie layout. The Chaplin film is "Work," a two-reel scream. It has never been seen in Atlanta before, and is booked Monday only at the Vaudette theater and at the Alamo Number Two.

John Barrymore plays "The Dictator" at the Grand Monday and Tuesday. "Hypocrites" is at the Montgomery the last three days of the week.

When Justice sleeps, the third of the "Who Pays" dramas, is at the Alpha theater Wednesday, and the Montgomery the same day. The Alpha has "The White Terror" Thursday, a drama endorsed by the Anti-Tuberculosis association.

At the Strand Monday and Tuesday Max Figman is the star in "My Best Girl." Orrin Johnson appears there the next two days in "Fighting Bob," and there is a Masterpiece, "The Criminal," later in the week.

Beatriz Michelena, Lillian Russell and Cecil Spooner are three of the stars at the Victoria in World Film features. Michelena in "Mignon," Lillian Russell in "The Criminal," and Cecil Spooner in "The Criminal." "A Wolf Unmasked" and "The Japanese Mask" are the titles of two thrilling Pathe features at the Alamo One. The popular theater also announces Charlie Chaplin in three different comedies and four Keystone comedies.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN "WORK" AT ALAMO TWO MONDAY. He's coming to the Alamo Number Two Monday.

Who? Why, the funny little man with the funny little moustache—Charlie Chaplin. And he's coming in a two-reel Essanay comedy, before seen in Atlanta—"Work."

"Work" is the same sort of comedy that sent thousands of Atlantians to the Alamo Two to see "The Champion" some months ago—slapstick and a laugh from beginning to end.

"Work" has packed theaters to the roof in other cities. It is shown at the Alamo Number Two Monday it is the funny film of the week.

The seventh episode of "The Goddes" is at the Alamo Number Two Tuesday. Besides this popular serial starring Anita Stewart and Earle Williams there will be shown "Braga's Double," a two-reel Essanay drama featuring Nell Craig and Sheldon Lewis.

For Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the Alamo Number Two has booked "Three Weeks," a pictureization of Glyn's famous novel. The film version of the book that was the talk of two continents follows the story faithfully. Almost chapter for chapter the history of the beautiful young queen who sought happiness after her marriage to the royal rake, is followed.

"Three Weeks" the movie is the same as "Three Weeks," the book.

"WHO PAYS" AND "TERROR" PICTURES ARE AT THE ALPHA. Chief among the more notable attractions at the Alpha this week are Warren Kerrigan Monday in "The Oyster Dredger," another "Who Pays" drama on Wednesday and "The White Terror" on Thursday, a powerful feature on the theme of terror.

Vera Sisson supports J. Warren Kerrigan Monday in "The Oyster Dredger," a two-reel Victor drama, in which the two noted stars are at their best. On the same day, Monday, will be shown "The White Terror," a powerful feature on the theme of terror.

"A Bolt From the Blue," and brings the threads of this thrilling mystery close to a climax.

When Justice sleeps, the third of the complete drama in Pathe's "Who Pays" is at the Alpha, Wednesday.

It is at the Alpha, Wednesday, Ruth Roland and Henry King take the lead and the story is a dramatic portrayal of a man who stilled love for honor, the vampire woman and her brother and how he paid the penalty of another's crime.

The "Who Pays" dramas are not wishy-washy sentimentalities with the usual "good" ending, but with red-blooded realism on twelve vital questions of life. Each is complete in itself.

"The White Terror" Thursday at the Alpha is in a large measure the story of "The Criminal," Samuel Hays' famous novel. At the same time it is an indictment of quick remedies for tuberculosis.

While no "sensational" film, but a sterling drama replete with gripping situations, "The White Terror" has the endorsement of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis association.

Robert Henley, Frances Nelson and Al Houbart are the principals in "The White Terror."

Friday at the Alpha Harry Griffiths and Gertrude Selby star in a two-reel riot, "Blue Blood and Yellow Backs," which Lane is the star the same day.

"Her Own Blood," a Big U drama. Saturday another Princess Hays' drama, "The Honor of a Woman."

JOHN BARRYMORE STARS IN "THE DICTATOR" AT GRAND.

Such screen notables as John Barrymore, Myrtle Steadman, Francis X. Bushman, Rose Coghlan, Horne and Stover, are to be served Grand patrons next week in one of the most elaborate film programs of its career.

"The Dictator," a Famous Players release, is the attraction in which Barrymore appears. It will be offered Monday and Tuesday. Intense interest has been aroused not only over the coming of Barrymore, but over the presentation of one of Richard Harding Davis' most interesting stories of diplomatic affairs and warfare.

"The Sporting Duchess," a screen presentation of the famous stage success in which Rose Coghlan, supported by EVEL CLAYTON, impersonates the principal character, is Wednesday's attraction. The picture was produced in the Labia studios, and is the fourth of the masterful releases contributed by that concern to the Vithaph-Sells-Lubin-Essanay combination.

Thursday Francis X. Bushman returns in his most successful screen achievement, "Grazers," the dim portrayal of George Barr McCutcheon's "Fighting Drums" drama. The return engagement is being played because of the clamorous demands of the hundreds who found it impossible to witness it when it last was shown at the Grand.

Myrtle Steadman and Forrest Stanley, in "The Wild Olive," the stunning Oliver Morosco production, will be the bill for Friday and Saturday.

MAX FIGMAN, EDMUND BRESSE AND OTHER STARS AT STRAND. Big features starring popular favorites are booked for the Strand this week, beginning with Max Figman and Lois Meredith Monday and Tuesday in "My Best Girl" and ending Saturday with a new Mutual master picture.

"My Best Girl" is a rollicking comedy-drama from the pen of Channing Pollock and Bennett Wolf. The two popular stage stars shine in five acts of this attractive little feature, and the settings and photography are beyond compare.

Pictorial color is given to the Metro drama, "Fighting Bob," in which Orrin Johnson stars at the Strand Wednesday and Thursday, as the scene of FILMDOM'S FAVORITES AT ATLANTA THEATERS. 1. Harry Benham, one of the Mutual stars at Alamo Number One. 2. Scene from "The Dictator," with John Barrymore, Grand Monday and Tuesday. 3. J. CHAPLIN, KEESTONES, PATHE DRAMAS AT ALAMO NUMBER ONE. Charlie Chaplin in three comedies, four Keystone comedies, two sensational Pathe dramas, and a number of the Mutual releases, make up an attractive program at the Alamo No. 1 this week.

Chaplin is at this popular theater Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. The Keystone comedies are booked for Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The Mutual films are several fine dramas such as "The Chinatown Mystery," a thrilling story of a newspaper reporter, booked for Tuesday.

One of the Pathe dramas is "The Wolf of London," a powerful three-reel drama, with Jane Novak.

TUESDAY, "Into the Light," A powerful three-reel drama, with Jane Novak.

OLD OXFORD ALUMNI
TO HONOR DR. DODSON
Home-Coming Week Will Be Celebrated Near Anniston, Ala.

ANNISTON, Ala., June 12.—Homecoming week will be celebrated during the coming week by the surviving alumni of Oxford College, one of the oldest educational institutions in the little town south of here, as a tribute to the memory of Dr.
John L. Dodson, its president and founder, former superintendent of education in Alabama, author and scholar.
The exercises will be held on historic ground, around the old Oxford college building where Colonel John Tyler encamped with his fifty-first regiment of Confederate volunteers, and where Miss Todd, the sister of Abraham Lincoln, presented a hand-made battle flag, which could not be accepted until the black border was removed. The Morgan oak under which this presentation took place still stands, and hard by are the ruins of an old Confederate furnace, as well as many marks of Stoner-man's famous raid.
Former graduates and undergraduates of this noted educator will gather in Oxford to attend the "Dodson homecoming celebration" and to place flowers on the grave of him who gave all the years of his life to the cause of education.

Serbia Honors Lipton
NINETEEN, June 12.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Sir Thomas Lipton has been made a grand commander of the Order of Saint Sava.
This is the highest Serbian decoration ever conferred on a foreigner. The order is granted for services in education, science, art or literature.

THIS WEEK'S VAUDEILLE

BONITA
AT THE FORSYTH

A week of stunning vaudeville is on tap at the Forsyth beginning tomorrow.
Bonita and Lew Hearn headline the week. Bonita is a particularly fascinating young woman, equally renowned for her ability as well as her beauty. Lew Hearn is an eccentric comedian of international repute. It will be their first Atlanta appearance. They present in vaudeville what they call "Bits of Musical Comedy." This is a selection of musical numbers contributed to the theatrical world by the modern successes, and garnished by the inimitable humor of the celebrated Lew Hearn.
Jack Gardner is another feature of the coming program. Theatersgoers no doubt recall with relish his achievements in the "Chocolate Soldier" and "Madame Sherry," to say nothing of the popularity he has commanded in vaudeville for the last several seasons.
"Circus You, Jack Dalton!" is the title of the funny playlet which he offers in vaudeville. He is supported by a company of Broadway players.
Europe has contributed many novelties to the American variety stage, but

LOVELY BRIDE AND PARTY AT THORNTON-KENNEDY WEDDING

Contest for Southern Writers

The Southern Woman's Magazine invites the writers of the south to join in a competition for prizes of $500 to be given for the best three short stories sent to the magazine by the first of October. In making this offer the magazine has a two-fold hope and ambition: first to encourage the efforts of young writers who have as yet failed of recognition or to broaden and accentuate the fame of those already known, and second to give to southern writers the satisfaction of critical recognition in their own part of the country.

The stories submitted for the contest are not to be limited as to scene, character or purpose. The Southern Woman's Magazine stands for the present and future as well as for the past, it represents a people which looks back with reverence to the scenes and deeds of its own unique and beautiful history, yet which, remembers, too, with eager interest, the lives and destinies of all the men and women of the great world of which it is a part, and feels the common touch of love and joy, of heroism, happiness and sorrow, wherever and whenever they are found.

A prize of $200 will be given for the best short story submitted to the Southern Woman's Magazine by October 1 of this year, $100 for the second best, and $100 for the third best.

Only southern writers are eligible to the contest, but residence away from the south is no bar to this distinction.

Manuscripts must be typewritten and on one side of the page only.

Manuscripts must not exceed 5,000 words.

Each manuscript must be marked only with the title of its story, but must be accompanied by a sealed envelope bearing on the outside the title of the story and containing within, a slip of paper giving the title of the story together with the name and address of the writer.

A stamped and addressed envelope must also be included for the return of the manuscript in case it fails to win a prize.

The contest closes October 1, 1915, and manuscripts must be in the office of the magazine by noon of that day.

M. P. S. Club

Mrs. A. Adams entertained the members of her sewing club last week at her home in Decatur.

The club members attendance were: Mrs. C. W. Arnold, Mrs. J. J. Simmons, Mrs. T. N. Abernathy, Mrs. J. S. Lacy, Mrs. J. P. Hoot, Mrs. W. Burgess and Mrs. A. H. Adams.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. W. C. Beddingfield on Orleans street.

Afternoon Party

The party at which Mrs. Matt Gheesling entertained Thursday afternoon at her home on Greenwood avenue, was an enjoyable affair, and one of many parties given in compliment to Miss Albert Perkins, whose marriage to Mr. Henry Carlton Gheesling, of Birmingham, Ala., will be an event of the week, and Mrs. William Gheesling, a recent bride.

The house was decorated with quantities of field daisies and plants. Tables were arranged on the spacious porch, in the drawing and music rooms, where the guests assembled.

Progressive ruck was one of the features of the afternoon. The score cards were hand-painted daisies, carrying out the color scheme of yellow and white.

Mrs. G. J. Hartman won the prize for top score, a pair of silk stockings.

Miss Alice Perkins cut the consolation, a handkerchief.

The guests of honor were presented with white and gold mayonnaise sets.

Mrs. Gheesling assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Ellie Gheesling and Mrs. John H. Wood.

The guests included Miss Emmie Locke, Miss Beulah Brooks, Miss Albert Perkins, Miss Letha Aree, Miss Alice Perkins, Miss Julia Lester of New Orleans, Miss Ellie Gheesling, Mrs. Clayton Henry, Mrs. G. N. King, Mr. Robert Brandon, Mrs. Morrison Hartman, Mrs. John Woods, Mrs. G. J. Hartman, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Mr. William Gheesling, Mrs. Julian Harrison, Mrs. E. Vester Gerraux and Mrs. Matt Gheesling.

The party at which Mrs. Matt Gheesling entertained Thursday afternoon at her home on Greenwood avenue, was an enjoyable affair, and one of many parties given in compliment to Miss Albert Perkins, whose marriage to Mr. Henry Carlton Gheesling, of Birmingham, Ala., will be an event of the week, and Mrs. William Gheesling, a recent bride.

The house was decorated with quantities of field daisies and plants. Tables were arranged on the spacious porch, in the drawing and music rooms, where the guests assembled.

Progressive ruck was one of the features of the afternoon. The score cards were hand-painted daisies, carrying out the color scheme of yellow and white.

Mrs. G. J. Hartman won the prize for top score, a pair of silk stockings.

Now Ready for You.

The lovely campus of twenty-eight acres, with its flowers, shrubbery and stately forest trees, affords a delightful home environment of security, comfort and quiet for the pursuit of study, and ideal facilities for recreation and outdoor sports. With an elevation of 1,100 feet above the sea, a delightful winter climate, dormitories and class rooms equipped with modern conveniences, the health record of the Institution is unsurpassed in all America. The absolute freedom from malarial diseases has attracted a large patronage from the lower South since before the Civil War.

To these natural advantages the city of Atlanta adds unparalleled opportunities to profit by thought and action. No other city in all the South approaches Atlanta in its power to attract the world's greatest artists, statesmen, authors, educators, theologians, artists, singers and musicians. By special arrangement many of these are introduced from the College plant and all are accessible to Cox students at a minimum of expense.

The course of study is that of a Grade college, supplemented by elective courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, Harmony, Counterpoint, Oration, Drawing and Painting, Domestic Science (Cooking, Dressmaking and Millinery), Stenography and Typewriting. The schedule of work is designed to give the greatest flexibility to the curriculum, and the individual requirements and talents of the student are made the basis for the selection of her studies. A black and white illustration of a vintage open-top car, likely from the early 20th century. The car is shown from a side profile, facing left. It has large spoked wheels with white wall tires, a high chassis, and a folded-down convertible top at the rear. Several passengers are visible: a driver at the wheel, a passenger in the front seat, and a group of people in the back seat, including a woman wearing a hat and a coat. The car is depicted on a road with some motion lines underneath.

Kristen from the south and stormy seas. They are probably convince

Judging from thorough and stormy passage which Scott Chestnut is having these days it is beginning to appear that Scott's combination of an editorial device, grand opera voice, and dictatorial manner is not taking very well with the players and managers of the league. On the return of the Crackers here a short time since Bill Smith announced that Chestnut had put over some of the worst stuff that he had ever seen in his life. "Chestnut was telling me from a trip that left none too pleasant memories and there was a tendency to mollify some of his charges. But it appears that the proverbial grain of truth had been liberally fertilized, and that there was really real merit in

Telling of the circumstances which led up to, and the scenes attendant upon Chestnut's chasing the Cracker manager from a game in New Orleans during the late series there, one Crescent City scribbler has the following to say:

"Take your things and get right out of here! Huh! Stinks and get right out!"

"Above is the way Scott Chestnut, who would be lieutenant governor of Alabama had enough people voted for him, replied to Manager Smith's suggestion that Rumber step aside and permit Prexy Budge's arbiter to take

"Bill Smith didn't obey Umpire Chestnutt, and for some reason or other, the umpire didn't put Smith out. He found an easier way—called two husky harness bulls. Of course Smith went out of the grounds, but as he did so persons occupying seats down the third

The League of Peace.

There was a wholesome matter-of-factness to the conference of statesmen, jurists, educators and business leaders who met at Philadelphia last week to project plans for an International League of Peace. They ventured upon no quixotic scheme to end the present war by honeyed "persuasion," as Mr. Bryan has proposed. They recognized that this struggle must be fought to a decision, or that if mediation is to be employed, it must come at the request of one of the belligerents and with the consent of the others. The admirable feature of the Philadelphia conference was its workmanlike consideration of plans to control and if possible prevent great wars in the future. That of itself is an ambitious and uncertain task, but it has been seasonably undertaken and on its success the hope and happiness of the world vitally depend.

The plans, suggested largely by Former President Taft and endorsed by the conference, contemplate a league of nations each of which shall subscribe to the following agreement:

"First, all justifiable questions arising between the signatory Powers, not settled by negotiations, shall, subject to the limitations of treaties, be submitted to a judicial tribunal for hearing and judgment, both upon the merits and upon any issue as to its jurisdiction of the question.

"Second, all other questions arising between the signatory Powers and not settled by negotiation shall be submitted to a council of conciliation for hearing, consideration and recommendation.

"Third, the signatory Powers shall jointly use forthwith both their economic and military forces against any one of their number that goes to war, or commits acts of hostility, against another of the signatories before any question arising shall be submitted as provided in the foregoing.

"Fourth: Conferences between the signatory Powers shall be held from time to time to formulate and codify rules of international law, which, unless some signatory shall signify its dissent within a stated period, shall thereafter govern in the decisions of the judicial tribunal mentioned in Article I."

The third clause of these resolutions is, perhaps, the most significant; for it looks to some system of international police to enforce the judgments of the world court. Unless there are ready means of dealing with outlaws among nations as with outlaws among individuals, outlawry will continue to burst forth in spite of all compacts and tribunals. No treaty was ever more binding in a moral sense than that which guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium, but under the spur of military ambition it was kicked aside as "scrap paper." No international agreements were ever more explicit than those which guarantee the sea rights of neutrals and non-combatants, yet in the present war unarmed passenger ships and peaceful merchantmen have been torpedoed and innocent lives destroyed without warning. There must be a solid basis of both material and moral force if peace plans for the future are to be effective.

Whether the proposal of the Philadelphia conference with find a hearty response after the war is over remains to be proved. Whether these broad ideas can be reduced to practical details is yet to be determined. It is, however, both so earnest and thoughtful a beginning has been made; and we may hope that in the tragic sundown of the present struggle, the world will turn to some star of enduring peace.

Ty Cobb continues to prove that a champion may hold his own.

The Loyal Swiss.

Switzerland stands out as a little island of security and concord in a surging ocean of war. Its people are of different races, German, French and Italian; but there are no hyphens among them. "The German Swiss of Schaffhausen," writes a correspondent, "are not for Germany; the French Swiss of Geneva are not for France; the Italian Swiss of Ticino are not for Italy; and this in spite of the fact that these outlying cantons are almost surrounded by Germany, France and Italy, respectively." Whatever their racial origin, the Swiss are immovably loyal to their own land, as they have been the ages through; and in that spirit lives the assurance of their national integrity and freedom.

Here is a worthy example for Americans of foreign ancestry or birth. Noting that in some respects the status of the United States is analogous to that of Switzerland, the Cleveland Plain Dealer remarks: "There is no United States race; many of our citizens are of German or English or Italian derivation; but they should be primarily for the United States, and its interests should be supremely important to them." The big fact to all true Americans is not whence they came but where they are; not the Old World's darkness but the light and hope of a world that is spiritually new.

The Germans should remember, too, that it is a long, long way back from Lemberg.

Awakening to the Needs Of the National Defense.

Secretary Garrison remarked more than a year ago that the great need of the American army was that the American public should realize the army's needs. Especially is that true of our national defenses today. The people should face the fact that neither their army nor navy is now adequate to protect the country against a powerful foe, and thus admonished they should insist as a matter of prudent patriotism that Congress remedy these shortcomings without delay.

There are hopeful evidences that the rank and file are at last awakening to this grave duty. Business organizations are urging it; peace conferences are recognizing it; educational leaders are stressing it. This does not mean that the country is in a beligerent mood; on the contrary, it is peculiarly calm and self-contained. It earnestly desires a peaceful outcome of pending issues, but it is also mindful of its interests and honor and thinks more intently than ever upon their safeguarding. This is a wholesome spirit, and one to which Congress should respond.

The United States army is dangerously short of men and officers and equipment, particularly as regards the coast defense. Its personnel is admirable and so is its equipment as far as it goes. But every competent observer declares that they do not go far enough. Except for the National Guard, there is no provision for a reserve force, and the National Guard itself is not duly encouraged. The time has come, as a conservative authority urges, "when every regiment of the regular army and of the militia should be raised to its full strength, when the deficiency in field guns, rifles and ammunition for the equipment of an adequate defense force should be made up as rapidly as possible, and when the most vital shortage of all, the shortage of trained men fit to be the officers of our citizen army, should receive vigorous and practical attention."

The navy likewise should be developed to a point commensurate with the country's safety and needs. In auxiliary craft, such as battle cruisers, mine layers and sweepers, submarines and aeronautical service, the American navy is woefully lacking. In summing up our naval resources for combating attack by a first-class power, Rear Admiral Price recently said, "We have a smaller number of dreadnaughts, pre-dreadnaughts and destroyers than the enemy could bring; no battle cruisers, no effective scouts, one ship recently contracted for, only three good aeroplanes, not yet ready; two mine depot ships, one mine layer and twelve mine sweepers; about forty-five submarines of all kinds and ages, distributed over the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, Panama, Hawaii and the Philippines; and an inadequate merchant marine from which to get auxiliaries." Congress cannot fail, in justice to the nation, to supply the navy's needs generously and promptly.

There is one sure way of getting action from Congress, and that is for the people themselves to realize their vital stake in the matter of national defenses. The army's needs are their needs, the navy's needs are their needs. Preparedness will be to their interest, and unpreparedness to their jeopardy. The United States should not enter upon any scheme of militarism in the Prussian sense of that term, but it should be ready to defend its rights, its principles and its character if by any misfortune these should be attacked.

Apparently Italy's ability isn't confined to grand opera and barrel organs.

Naval officers doubtless appreciate the irony of breaking wine on the outside of a ship when she is christened, and afterwards prohibiting it inside.

Using the Schoolhouse.

With a typically New England sense of thrift, Boston is putting its public school plant to wider and wider use. The Transcript reports that seven social and educational centers for the benefit of adults are now conducted in various parts of the city, and that "organizations, ranging from orchestras to classes in manual training have been formed and successfully maintained." It appears moreover that academic courses are in popular demand at these evening sessions, the men asking for instruction in such subjects as American government, economics and the means to personal efficiency, while the women are interested in music, art and household management. So substantial have been the results thus accomplished, that the municipality expects to make a liberal appropriation for the continuance and extension of this service.

There is a tendency throughout the United States to bring the schools into closer touch with the people's common life. The idea that a school building must be used only a few hours a day and only a part of the year is giving place to a more practical and more humanistic policy. This is true not only of the larger cities but also of rural districts. Country schoolhouses are being used as gathering places for parents as well as children, and are serving as means of enrichment for both social and intellectual life.

First cotton blooms and first watermelons are what we like to see receiving honorable new mention.

The college-bred man will be given his first test on many a bush league diamond during the summer months.

Far from as sneer at the college graduate entering upon the threshold of life. He may push some of the old stagers out of the way.

The Peril of Grade Crossings.

State Senator John D. Walker, of the Twentieth district, purposes to introduce at the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill looking to the elimination of railroad crossings on the public highways of Georgia. There is tragic evidence of the need for such a law. Always a menace to life, grade crossings have become especially dangerous with the increase of automobile travel. Appalling accidents will continue to occur until some adequate regulation is adopted and put into effect.

It is important, of course, that any such measure take due account of the railroads' rightful interests. The costs involved should be apportioned equitably among the railway companies and the counties and municipalities concerned; and the reform should be effected gradually in order that the expense may not be crushing. As to the details of Senator Walker's bill, we are not informed; but, presumably it hews to these broad lines of practical justice. Particularly assuring is the fact that it assigns the administration of the proposed law to the State Railroad Commission. The Commission may be trusted to proceed wisely and fairly in working out this problem, if it is given the authority to act.

Though it would be impracticable to abolish all the grade crossings forthwith (there are several thousand in Georgia), a fair beginning could be made with those which are most perilous. Thus in the course of a few years, the improvement would be State-wide, without having imposed a serious burden on any interest. Legislation to this end should appeal to the railway companies no less to the public; it should appeal to their sense of efficiency and good business. The primary consideration, however, is the protection of human life, and on that high principle alone a justly designed bill to abolish or safeguard grade crossings deserves support.

Hope may bud when it is cloudy, but it blooms only in sunshine.

"New cabinet formed in Portugal." Must have been a Bryan in the old one.

America's Financial Supremacy.

The American dollar is today the world's standard of monetary value. While the currencies of all other nations have depreciated under the stress of war as never before, that of the United States stands unimpaired. Reckoned in terms of the dollar, the British pound has declined at least two per cent, the French franc five per cent, the German mark fourteen per cent, and the currency of Austria and Russia nearly twenty-five per cent each. European money buys less and less, while the purchasing power of American money is undiminished and relatively greater than ever.

There could be no sounder or more striking evidence of this country's financial strength and prestige. The Old World is desperately hoarding its gold. The United States has gold in abundance. The European nations have ceased to produce the necessities of life except in a limited and feeble way. The United States is ripening vast harvests and is turning forth huge quantities of manufactured goods. Thus Europe is forced to buy abroad, and the United States is prepared to sell.

The result of these conditions is seen in the fact that American interests are shipping across the sea approximately ten million dollars' worth of merchandise each day. Our favorable balances of foreign trade for the fiscal year now drawing to a close is little short of one billion dollars, and by June the thirtieth it will reach if it does not pass that stupendous figure. This means that we have sold a billion dollars more of goods than we have bought, and that the world's tide of gold has been turned toward our treasuries. It means that the United States is beginning the world's greatest creditor nation, and that the dollar is king of the world's finance.

Another disagreeable thing about the weather—people are always wanting to talk about it.

Every time you avoid doing wrong you increase your inclination to do right.

Editorial Echoes

At this season in former years there was discussion in financial circles as to the prospective withdrawals of money by the West from this center to pay harvest hands and "move the crops." "Tight money in the autumn" was the usual thing, and often it became so "tight" and commanded such high rates as to force disastrous liquidation in the Wall Street markets. There is not a whisper heard now on this subject. With nearly $200,000,000 surplus reserve in the banking institutions of this city, a favorable foreign trade balance averaging $3,000,000 for every working day, and gold flowing into the country in a steady stream, money is easy as the traditional "old shoe." More important than all is the existence of the new banking system with its safeguards against possible stridency. Hence the equanimity with which the banking community looks forward to "moving" the largest crops ever harvested. "Tight money" has passed into history—New York Herald.

Of the acting Secretary of State the Honorable Robert Lansing it is said that "he is only fifty-one." "The only" is well put in. In Europe the big work today is being done by men of more than sixty. Kitchener, Joffre and French are all past that age, and the Kaiser is winning victories with the veterans of the war of 1870, some of whom have white beards and are close to seventy. In the great war age will not be denied—New York Sun.

Honduras plantations are being ravaged by locusts, which fly in such dense masses that they obscure the sun. The Honduran planters doubtless enjoy resting in the shade of the locusts more than the Spaniards enjoyed fighting in the shade of the Persians whose plagues darkened the sky at Thermopylae—Courier Journal.

WIRELESS IN WAR

BY FREDERIC J. HARKIN

THE Italian navy entered the European conflict with a better equipment for communication than have any of the other belligerents. An Italian admiral is able to transmit his orders orally to the captains of ships within a certain range by means of a wireless telephone which has been quickly developed by Marconi within the past few months. The Italian navy has officially adopted the new instrument. The British admiralty is preparing to do so. One of the advantages of this system of communication is that it is not subject to interception by the enemy, as is the case with the telegraph and the telephone.

The facilities for direct and rapid communication in the present war are among the most striking developments. The advantages of wireless messages over the older systems of telegraph and telephone are obvious, and this method of communication is likely to be greatly improved during the present year. Marconi has already expressed to the kings of England and Italy his confidence in being able ultimately to transmit audible speech across the Atlantic ocean by multiplying the power and slightly modifying the design of the instruments which have already proved practical on the Italian ships. The development of this system will do away with the tedious processes of coding and decoding the messages, as in wireless telegraphy, invaluable as that system is proving under the present conditions.

The unrecognized advance in wireless telegraphy, which has been quickly wrought during the past few years, rendered the action of Germany in severing the sea telegraphic cables, within twenty-four hours after the declaration of war, of comparatively little importance. The shutting down of interior telegraph and telephone wires, which was so recommended a factor in shutting off the advancement of troops in former wars, had little influence in this one. Wireless messages are being used everywhere. The control of the wireless stations of the world is now more important than the supremacy of the sea. In fact, oceanic supremacy depends almost entirely upon complete wireless connections.

Germany recognized this fully and at the beginning of the conflict seemed to have firmly established herself in lines of communication which enabled her to be in daily contact with even her most remote possessions. The cutting off of these communications, which is believed to have been a more important conquest than the destruction of the strongest vessels of the German navy. Six months ago, a perfect network of wireless communications, centering in the great wireless station at Nauen, kept Germany in touch with conditions in South Africa, South America, China and the South seas.

The communications with Africa were by way of a station located on the Cape of Good Hope, at Swakopmund in German Southwest Africa, and to Dares-Salaam in German East Africa. It is claimed that the rebellion started in Africa was spread through Swakopmund. Plans for the invasion of Rhodesia and Uganda were being formulated through the station in Dares-Salaam and this station also enabled Germany to keep in touch with conditions in South America. The Anglo-English invasion of the Cameroons severed this communication, and have checked the Germans in Africa.

At Tsing-Tau and in the Rismarck Archipelago, Germany had other powerful stations which kept in communication with China and other foreign centers. The capture of Tsing-Tau by the Japanese and the conquest of the Rismarck Archipelago by the Austro-Italian forces have interfered with this communication in this part of the world. Germany had also erected a powerful wireless station upon Nantucket Island, which was designed to facilitate communication with this country. To save political complications the United States has assumed charge of this station, and only permits the transmission of neutral messages.

Notwithstanding these drawbacks, Germany still possesses a powerful system of wireless communications which have made possible her daring victories on the ocean and her bold aerial exploits. It is understood that the interior wireless system of Germany was the most completely organized in the world. For months ago, plans were made for constructing a wall of wireless stations around her entire boundaries, which is believed to have been completed. The wireless stations have aided materially in directing the attacks of the great Zeppelins.

FOOD MUST LOOK GOOD

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

IT is not enough to have the food on your table "pure and wholesome." In order for food to attain fully its purpose of providing nourishment, it must be served in an appetizing form.

It should both look and taste good, exciting a real desire to eat. If it does not do this, the process of digestion will not set properly in motion. And unless the digestive process works smoothly, malnutrition results, and the health suffers.

That the mere exciting of a desire for the food placed before one plays an important part in the assimilation of that food has been proved by a number of interesting experiments on animals and human beings. These were made possible by conditions which allowed the experimenters to observe the movements of the digestive organs.

Some dogs studied in these experiments had openings in their throats so large that food swallowed by them did not pass to the stomach, but fell by the sides. Other openings permitted an inner view of the stomach.

It was found that when the dogs were given appetizing food, an active flow of gastric juice began in the stomach within five minutes after they had started eating.

On the other hand, when food was permitted to reach the stomach there was no flow of gastric juice.

"That man says he wants his picture to look perfectly natural," said the photographer's assistant.

"Make it as handsome as possible," replied the proprietor.

"But he insists that he doesn't want his picture to flatter him."

"It was that thing that flatters him. He'll think that at last somebody has managed to catch the bug he really lacks."

A New York man was crossing the Atlantic with an army officer who suffered greatly from seasickness. On entering the stateroom one particularly rough day, he found the officer tossing in his berth, muttering in what he thought appeared to be a serious way.

Stopping over to catch his words, the friend heard him say: "Sergeant... major... brigadier general... uh, lieutenant... a-a-a-h."

"What are you saying," asked the friend, in some alarm, as the sufferer looked piteously up at him after his last gasping "a-a-a-h."

"Assigning the waves their rank," said the military man, rolling toward the wall again. "There have been eight lieutenant-generals within the last twenty minutes."—Everybody's Magazine.

It was little Teddy's first term at school, and his mother was telling the teacher how well the little boy was getting along with his studies. The teacher was getting along with his studies, too, and returned home, "what do you do in school all day?"

"I wait till it's time to go home," was Teddy's matter-of-fact reply.—Harper's Magazine.

communication. Wireless transmission between airplanes is hindered by the fact that even the most compact apparatus now in use is bulky, and therefore an impediment upon an airplane. Still, most of them are prepared to send messages for a mile or two. The question of the antenna, which catch the Hertzian waves conveying the message, is now receiving attention. Stretching wires between the wings has been tried unsatisfactorily. The latest development is the use of wires which can be quickly unrolled to trail behind the machine like the tail of a kite. The German Zeppelins have the advantage of most of the wireless systems in the fact that additional weight does not impede their progress, and they can therefore carry powerful instruments capable of transmitting messages over long distances. This facilitates their control from boundary stations even when out some distance.

The greatest drawback to wireless telegraphy is its lack of secrecy. Every station, and every department, maintain secret codes, but the possibilities of leakage always exist. Furthermore, when a message cannot be intercepted it can be greatly hindered by a hostile operator. The operator who desires to intercept a message tunes his instrument to a level with it. It is usually able to determine whether the cipher used is in letters or numbers, and can then send out from his own machine a jumble which will greatly confuse the message into which it is thrown.

Notwithstanding these difficulties, the wireless is performing a wonderfully effective service. It is now being used almost exclusively in the conveyance of diplomatic communications. Even the messages of warships, and the United States, some of which have exceeded ten thousand words in length, have been first put into the wireless code used by the state department, then recorded in the code of the German department of state and translated into the German language, or vice versa, without any important error being made.

All of the operations of the British fleet are directed by wireless. No person outside of the British admiralty knows just where the fleet is, but the movement of every vessel is directed daily by Admiral Jellicoe. He issues his orders through the large force of wireless operators who are engaged day and night in transmitting messages from the admiralty to the fleet. Each ship is also able to hold wireless communication with the other vessels of the fleet.

Wireless communication between vessels is aided by the submarine signal service recently invented by Prof. A. R. Fessenden, of Boston. This is a steel disk, twenty-two inches in diameter, attached to the side of a vessel. It is connected with a small electric battery, the instrument being really an enlarged electric "buzzer." When used above the water the sound would be unbearable, but when submerged only the faintest whisper like a far away siren is audible upon the deck of a vessel equipped with it.

This instrument transmits messages dependably for two or three miles, but inventors are working upon a system of sound magnification which will enable the vessels to send messages for many miles. Most of the United States submarines have been equipped with this new device. During a test given recently outside of Newport, Rhode Island, the boats were able to exchange signals for thirteen miles, and to hear distinctly at seven miles.

Wireless telephony or radio-telephony, as used in the Italian navy, is still in its infancy, but tremendous developments are to be expected within the next few months. The Italian navy is now equipped with wireless stations on every vessel, and is expected soon to direct the army maneuvers which are now controlled by wireless telegraphy.

Every French army division is now equipped with its own instruments for setting up a wireless station upon the field. The equipment includes transmission apparatus, receiving apparatus, and a number of small antennas to be carried by a human porter, while the larger ones are transported by specially designed motors. These aerials send the accounts of the daily hostilities to some other communication station which transmits them along the necessary relay to the Eiffel tower in Paris, the most powerful wireless station in the world. Return messages are flashed back from the war-controlling centers, and little effort would be needed if every wire in the world shared the rate of the German cables. The wireless message crosses the globe, enabling the lonely operator on the Arctic circle to keep as closely in touch with the army upon the Russian frontiers as if he were receiving every war "extra" published.

whatever, if the dogs were not hungry or if the food given to them was not appetizing.

The same phenomena was observed in the case of people in whom disease had caused external openings into the stomach. When palatable food was chewed, secretion of saliva and gastric juice began at once. But the chewing of tasteless and unpalatable food was not followed by secretion.

The application of these observations to household economy is obvious.

Why do we explain why so many people suffer from indigestion, their food not being served in an appetizing way? And the facts stated point clearly the way to increased health through paying closer attention to the niceties of the cuisine.

The flowers on the table, the spotlessness of the table linen, the arrangement of the dishes, the polishing of the food—these are the trivial things many people seem to think them.

Helping to render food pleasing to the eye and savory to the nostril, they promote the psychic state which science has proved to be essential to the proper beginning of the digestive process.

Especially are they of importance when, through illness, the appetite is poor.

Then, indeed, the serving of food made tempting looking by these simple artifices may mean the securing of a return to health which otherwise may be lost.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

Two neighbors had a long litigation about a small spring, which they both claimed. The judge, wearing out with the case, at last said:

"What is the use of making so much fuss about a little water?"

"Your honor will see the serious nature of the case," replied one of the lawyers, "when I inform you that the parties are both thirsty."

Jones says his wife is the most thrifty woman he ever knew. "Why," he says, "she has made me a miser during the last two years and has been miserly, sir, out of the samples she collected in her shopping tours during that time."

SWIMMING APPARATUS.

The importance of learning to swim is emphasized in the Cincinnati public schools. Most of the schools are equipped with bathing pools in which the swimming exercise is being made obligatory. The time boys are taught to swim by a unique device which has lately been installed.

An oval track is attached to the ceiling from which a number of boys are suspended in such a way as to permit them to run around the swimming course. A rope and a belt are attached to each. The boys who are to be taught to swim fasten the rope to their bodies and go into the water where they practice the various strokes under the direction of an instructor, who stands at one side of the pool. The belt supports them, so that it is impossible for them to tire. They move easily around the course. Every boy who has tried this new apparatus has learned to swim quickly. In a single lesson he has been relieved of fear, he can give his undivided attention to mastering the strokes.

Little Change In Batting List

Lord Retains Lead of League.
Lee Tops Crackers—Paulist Is Premier Slugger

But little change has been made in the comparative standings of the leading hitters of the Southern League during the past week. Brian Lord of the Chicago Cubs continues to lead the league with an average of .319. Press Crutcher, second sacker for the Chicago Cubs, is runner-up with an average of .315. Paulist comes third just one point behind Crutcher. The entire field is finding the going rather rough these days, just as it has been for some time past, just as it has been for some time past, just as it has been for some time past.

WALLACE WELL FIXED AS HE QUILTS ACTIVE SERVICE

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—Roderick Dhu Wallace, recently released by the St. Louis Browns, spent twenty-one years of service on the diamond.

Wallace is in his forty-first year. He was born November 4, 1874, at West End, a suburb of Pittsburgh. He has been in baseball twenty-one years, and every year a star.

He has been richly paid, but, of course, never had the advantage of watching the dollar like the stars of the present day. He went through the first baseball year, however, and came out financial winner, but Wallace in his first year received twice what he got in the year of 1902.

Wallace has served the Browns, but for twelve years. In that time he has received in salary from Colonel Hedges an aggregate sum of $12,000. He began in 1902, the first year of his career, for $3,500. The next season he was boosted to $4,000 on a five-year contract. At the expiration of the war-time contract he was up to $4,500, a figure he received to this day. Whether he received a bonus for managing the club in 1912 is not known nor admitted either by him or Owner Hedges.

Prior to 1902, Wallace received $3,000 from Frank de Hoes Robinson as a member of the Cardinals. In 1900 he drew down $2,100. His salary for the last three years, dating back to 1894, averaged around $1,800 a year. In his twenty-one seasons on the diamond, therefore, he earned altogether $66,000.

Wallace's nickname was never worse than "Bobby". From the day of his beginning in Franklin, Pa., in the spring of 1894 to the terminus of his long journey, he was a monument to temperance. He never drank, never smoked, unless he had a bet. One clear made him sick, and as Robert Burns wrote, "he gioried in his shame."

Wallace began in 1894 in Franklin, Pa., as a pitcher. He went that fall to Cleveland, and the next spring developed into a third baseman, playing 27 games. He remained with Cleveland (later switching to St. Louis) until 1902. He was then transferred to St. Louis. In 1902 he jumped in the big race on Robinson field with Jess Burkett, Willie Sudhoff, Jack Harper and Emmett Heidrick to the newly organized Browns. He has since been a member of Hedges' team.

No greater funder ever lived. No man has yet been found who could tag the runner like Wallace. No man so graceful has ever been known to have lived. He had an arm of steel, even up to three years ago. He never, however,

During the past week Tyrus Cobb slumped somewhat in his stick work, but he is still far enough ahead of the field to suffer one or two more bad weeks, and still lead the procession in the American league. Cobb has 27 points over the 400 mark, while the runner-up, Joe Jackson, who has pulled into second place.

In addition to leading the batting, Cobb has a few other records as well. He leads in total bases with 163, against 100 for his sidekick Sam Crawford; he has secured the most hits with 17, and tops all in runs scored with 61. He has 21 runs, though, in last running by a wide margin. He has 23 to his credit against 23 for Maisei, who comes next. Cobb of the Yankees is third with 21, and Bert Shotton of the Browns fourth with 20. All of these top the National league leader by good margins.

Jake Daubert Holding to Lead

Dodger Captain Six Points Ahead of Luderus—Four Giants Hitting Over .300

With an average of .370 for games played through Wednesday of the past week Jake Daubert, captain and first baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, still heads the list of batters in the National league. Jake has been picking up steadily for the past three or four weeks, and last week reached the top and appears likely to stay there, barring any peculiar coincidence plays first for the Phillies, is the runner-up with .354.

The big Dutchman is showing a pleasant reversal in form with the stick this year over what he did last season, and his batting has been a prominent factor in the winning of the club.

To judge from the list of heavy hitters, it is hard to see just why the Giants are not making a better showing. No less than four of McGraw's regulars are hitting better than .300.

Merkle, one of the quartet, has been of the game for some time, because of an injury. Doyle, with .357 leads, while Fletcher, Dave Robertson and Merkle also well over that mark.

Victor Salier, of the Cubs, is still the league's premier slugger. Salier has smashed out 16 hits for a total of 108 in 300 at bats.

Four batters of average batters, lacking just one or two more, are hitting a double or better every day. They are: Doyle, with .357 leads, while Fletcher, Dave Robertson and Merkle also well over that mark.

AS A PITCHER HE'S A TRUMP, AS A SLUGGER HE'S AN ACE

BY ROBERT L. RIPLEY.

Who said that a pitcher couldn't hit? Raymond B. Caldwell, the star stealer of the Yankee pitching staff, established a modern record by accumulating three home runs in four times at bat. At the same time he set a new pitching mark when he hit for a home run in succession while enacting the role of a substitute hitter. These three circuit wallops scored seven runs.

Caldwell always has been a good hitter. "Slim" is really a great ball player, and if he would only take the game a little more seriously there is not the least doubt he would be one of Cobb's hottest rivals. He is a big, good natured, careless, easy-going, unassuming man, as was when he broke into the game.

Three home runs in four times at bat is not the record. Back in the old days of heavy hitters when they used to hunt 'em over the fences, (so they say), Caldwell's mark was bettered on three different occasions. Three times by Dan Brouthers, Dan Brouthers, Dan Brouthers, and the famous Ed Deleahanty.

Crawford May Tinker on Hunt For New Hitters

Tiger Slugger Carries Chance to Register Largest Number of Hits as Major Leaguer

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Sam Crawford, Ty Cobb's slugging partner, is out to break all records for number of hits made, and, barring accidents, is almost certain to surpass the marvelous records of Hann Wagner and Larry Landis. Crawford has little chance to equal the marks made by Wagner, Landis, Cobb, Anson, Kelly, Keeler, Deleahanty and Brouthers for average over a long stretch of years, but the Detroit slugger is likely to register more hits before he retires than any player in the game.

When Landis and Wagner passed the 200 hit mark it was freshly predicted that no other player would ever reach that total, because they were unlikely to hit so long as the famous pair.

Those who figured that way were reckoning without Crawford, who now has more than 2,800 hits to his credit and has played five years less than either. Crawford is a player who takes excellent care of himself and is apparently just as good, if not better, than he was several years ago. It is not reasonable to suppose that Landis or Wagner will be playing regularly three years from now, and if they average 150 hits a season they will be just at the 3,500 mark. Crawford has, year after year, led the American league in number of hits, though many men may beat him an average of 100 hits in a season, and close to 200 hits a season. In four years at this rate Crawford will have passed the mark set by Landis and Wagner, and it is no sure thing that either Larry or Wagner will reach the 3,500 mark.

In number of runs driven in there is little doubt that Crawford would surpass all others had his record been kept in the past. In the three years that he has had remarkable luck in the way of escaping injuries, and boasts of another record that cannot be equalled by any other modern player.

In the last four years Crawford has missed only five games, and this year has been in succession in 1912. Since the start of the 1913 season Crawford has not been missing from the lineup or even a practice game played by the Tigers, and added to this he has a record of playing continuously for three years. After the close of the 1913 season Crawford joined the barnstormers who were touring the Pacific coast and California until the time arrived to depart for the training camp. Immediately after the close of the 1913 season Crawford joined Frank Bancroft's barnstormers and played in China during the winter. The following winter he went around the world with the Giants and White Sox. Crawford has been in the country, at the shore or in a back seat, at $4.00 at dealers or prepaid.

Chandler Was Months Ahead of the "New Models"

THIS is "announcement" time, it seems. You are being told about "new models" and lower prices. Well the new models and the lower prices had to come, for the Chandler pointed the way months ago—not with a cheapened car but with a car that had made good for thousands of owners, at a price that made the industry gasp.

Tennessee Bars Freshmen on Gridiron

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 19.—University of Tennessee has cast in her lot with the other institutions that enter class of freshmen on the gridiron. The school will not play first-year men on her football eleven. This decision was arrived at during the transfer of a football athlete council a few days since largely through the influence of Dr. Brown Ayres, who has long been making a one-year rule. Announcement was made at the meeting that the athletic association closed the year out for the first time in many years.

Ready—the 1916 Hudson

Yacht-Line Body—Ever-Lustre Finish—$200 Less

This new-type Hudson has won a remarkable following. It has brought to all men new ideals of a class car, changing the entire vogue. It has trebled our output, forced immense factory additions, compelled 31 makers to follow our footsteps. Within 20 months, this lightweight Hudson has been adopted by 15,000 motorists.

Now comes another $200 reduction. Now comes the Yacht-Line Body, with new grace, new luxury, new roominess and comfort. Now comes the fulfillment of your dreams—a finish of lasting lustre. Today this favorite class car starts a brilliant new career.

Remember Its History

Two seasons ago this new-type Hudson came out at $1,750. Its announcement startled Motordom. Its price was pronounced impossible in a high-grade Six. Its lightness—under 3,000 pounds—was scoffed at as incompatible with strength.

But the car was a Hudson, and Hudson standards are high. Howard E. Coffin was its designer, and he stands foremost in his field. He and his whole corps had spent two years in testing and perfecting it. And men were waiting for a class car which would cut down operative cost.

So our first month's output was sold before anyone saw the car. When the car appeared men flocked by thousands to it. And for one whole year thereafter Hudson buyers waited weeks for cars.

Now Come Graceful Yacht Lines

Now our designers have spent another year on this car. There was no way to improve the chassis. Fifteen thousand cars, covering millions of miles, had failed to develop one fault. Every part and detail had been refined to the limit.

So in this third model they gave their time to the body. They worked out this stately body, with its graceful, sweeping yacht lines.

Every broken line is eliminated. The top-

Then a $200 Reduction

The next season the price—which seemed so impossible—was reduced to $1,550, because of multiplied output. Thirty-one improvements were made in the car, including still lighter weight. Another year's work by our engineering corps showed in its refinement.

This model was soon 4,000 cars oversold. We shipped 1,000 cars by express. It became at once the largest-selling car in the world with a price above $1,200.

That changed the whole trend in motor car designing. It became evident at all that the day of overtax was ended. Men would not stand for excess in weight, size or operative cost. All cars were built lighter, most prices were reduced. And in 31 factories this new-type Hudson became the pattern car.

line of the body and the doors is leather bound.

And they created this luxurious tonneau. The sides are higher than before, the rear seat is much wider, so it doesn't crowd three adults. The car seats seven, with all the room that anybody wants. And the extra tonneau seats disappear when not wanted, doubling the tonneau room.

You have never seen a body so impressive and graceful as this Yacht-Line Hudson body.

Now Comes the Ever-Lustre Finish

And now comes for the first time what you have dreamed of—a lustrous finish which stays new. It is the greatest innovation of the year.

In our new factory addition we have built mammoth ovens, with capacity for hundreds of bodies. Now our body finish is baked on in many separate coats. Each coat of finish is now applied under pressure which fixes it as never before. After each coat the body goes to an oven where it is baked for hours, then rubbed. This is done with every coat—an exclusive Hudson process.

The result is a body that stays new. The finish is smooth and brilliant. It resists sun and rain, washing, rubbing, mud. Experienced motorists who have seen bodies grow old and dull will consider this Ever-Lustre finish the most welcome improvement in years.

We combine it with enameled leather upholstery—better than has ever appeared in a car at this price. And with deep, hair-filled cushions, which means enduring luxury as well. This year's new body features mean much added cost. But it means a revolution in finish, in comfort and appearance.

Now Comes the $1350 Price

The Vogue of Simplicity

Howard E. Coffin saw years ago that the trend was toward simplicity. Now everybody knows it. Excess and waste are unpopular. Good taste now calls for satisfaction without show.

Thus Hudson has become the class car. Its owners, in large part, are men who have paid two and three times its price. Hudson typifies the ideals of the times. This fact is conspicuous, wherever you look about.

All questions regarding this new-type car have been answered on the road. There are 15,000 Hudsons of this type in use. In two years men have driven them many million miles. And every owner vouches that the car is staunch, enduring, faultless, as well as economical.

Hudson now embodies all that any man can want. It is the fine car of the modern type. Only those men who still take pride in some form of excess will find any car more appealing.

Like No Other Car

Bear in mind that Hudson is like no other car. There are many models of this type, but there are scores of ways—important ways—in which Hudson is unlike them. Let us point them out. This is a Howard E. Coffin creation, a finished product, unique and unapproached.

Crippled Peddler Left Ams House To See The World

Bill Watley, Who is Scarcely Able to Walk, Has Since Traveled As Far West As Frisco. Lives on 15 cents a Day

"I'm no pauper," he said, moving his crutch to make room for his questioner. "No more poor house for me. I can make 50 to 75 cents a day, and I never fall below a quarter. Since I left out there in 1906, I've been as far west as San Francisco, and I mean to go to New York."

"Out there," is his description of Fulton county's almshouse. He says its "out" from everything—sights and sounds of the city, people, work, even the privilege of being hungry and of getting your next meal by hook or crook.

It was so much "outside" and away from every real thing that it couldn't hold him.

The records show that about 1906 William Watley told the poor house good-bye, and hasn't been back since. But something the statistics don't show is how he left. He had a crutch under one arm, he totted along painfully, with the whole left side of him dragging, and his speech was thick and indistinct.

Paralysis had left him an utter invalid. But it couldn't keep him in the poor house.

Anyone else as badly broken and deadened by sickness as William Watley is, would be lying on the flat of his back and looking for other people to feed him.

But this poor pencil-peddler is a rare breed of human being. He simply doesn't know what it is to give up—he can't be beaten.

Just leaving the almshouse was merely a beginning for him. You would think that a livelihood, even the most pinched, would be his whole ambition and that to attain that would take a courage and a wit on his part deserving of the topmost praise. But he hadn't more than got free of the almshouse and mixed with people here and seen what there is in Atlanta, than he decided he needed to see other cities.

He can't read or write, he talks with a very great effort, and finds it hard to make himself understood, and he doesn't walk, he simply drags himself forward. But he's been in half the states of the union. With just money enough to pay his way to Chattanooga, he left Atlanta, and stayed in the Tennessee city, selling pencils, until he had railroad fare to another nearby place. He finally got to Washington, saw all the capital city had to show, and worked his way back to Atlanta.

Peddling pencils is his whole means of a livelihood: and it's real peddling, and not begging. He never asks anyone to give him money.

For a little while longer he settled down here; then the thought came to him that he should see the great, free west, and he set out, not a single misgiving, not a single fear, thoroughly confident he could get along anywhere, and yet he is the most hopeless of cripples. It is merely because of his undaunted spirit that he is able to drag himself along at all.

He went to New Orleans and he also stopped over in Hattiesburg, which, by the way, he says is the only decent town in the south besides Atlanta; then, he struck out for the real heart of the west. All in the world he had was courage and hope—a crutch, and a few dollars, and he was a traveler as ever took the long road.

He went into Texas, into Mexico, into Arizona, then on to California, saw San Francisco, sold everybody pencils, looked on the Pacific, thought awhile of shipping to the far east, then thought better of it and turned his face homeward.

Two years ago he arrived back in Atlanta, and since then, he has done little or no wandering. But he hasn't yet seen enough of the world; he isn't at all satisfied to sit down and become a stay-at-home. The spirit of the adventurer is still strong in him; and before long his crutch will be tapping out on strange roads.

Last week he received an interviewer on the Houston street ventilator of the Chandler building. He removed his crutch for the visitor to sit down, and very promptly entered into his story.

He told of the almshouse and how he couldn't for the life of him live there; he told of his travels, of what a good town Hattiesburg is and what rotten one New Orleans is; he explained how one night, out west, he was robbed of all he had and woke up the next morning with empty pockets. What did he do? He sold more pencils and got more money.

Then, he brought his journeys to an end back in Atlanta and told how things are going with him now.

"Oh, I'm doing fine," he said. "I never make less than a quarter a day, and I can live on 15 cents. Sure, I can keep going on that. And save money, too."

He got up, struck his crutch under one arm, and began to move painfully down the street, holding out to passers-by his bunch of pencils.

"So long," he called back. "See you in New York."

Vacation Hint Given By City Physician

IN going away for your health this summer, be sure that you are not going away to get sick.

This is the advice of Dr. Claude Smith, city physician. He says that among the cases of typhoid fever in Atlanta last summer a number were instances where the patients contracted fever on their vacations and brought it home with them.

"Georgia," he added, "is of course blessed with the best of resorts. Throughout the south you'll find places that are ideal for resting. But in Atlanta, at least, make sure your summer resort is sanitary. The Atlanta board of health is thinking of making up a list of resorts near Atlanta, and of saying just what their healthful qualities are.

"In my opinion, one of the greatest health problems during the summer is keeping well while you are away from home."

War Medal For Georgia Soldier Who "Killed 3,000 Men"

On the left, at the top, is Grady Powell, of Lincoln county, Ga., who is now serving with the Canadian field artillery and who was wounded recently at Ypres. For his bravery he may be given a commission in the British army. He estimates that he has killed 3,000 men. On the right, at the top, is one of the Krupp siege mortars used with such telling effect by the Germans. On the left, at the bottom, is a British field gun of the type with which Grady Powell says he has killed 3,000 men. The pictures printed here are copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

A commission as a British officer will be but another step in Powell's career, which has been that of a soldier of fortune and also of a very brave and adventurous man. He would have fitted quite well into a book by Richard Harding Davis.

Powell is the son of W. C. Powell, who is a farmer living near Lincoln, Ga., and who was formerly a member of the Georgia legislature. He is also a cousin of Hardy Uml, secretary to Governor Slaton.

Powell's adventurous career started in the United States navy, where for years he was a seaman on one of Uncle Sam's fighting ships. He was released from service because of having been injured. But when the revolutionary troubles began in Mexico, he had recovered enough to feel a hankering again for active service.

He left Georgia, crossed the border from Texas, and the next heard from him he was one of Villa's officers. He was in some of the worst of that bushwacker fighting and probably would still be in Mexico if it hadn't been for the outbreak of the European war. The largeness of the struggle in Europe drew him like a magnet. He went first to Canada, where he enlisted in the Canadian field artillery; and was a member of one of the first Canadian detachments to leave for England.

After a short while in training camp, his battery was ordered to France and got there just in time to stand off the Germans when they started their drive to the coast. The Canadians showed better in this fighting than the British troops have in any other engagement, and Powell was right in the thick of it. The letters from the British army office are evidence that his bravery was exceptional.

Later on he was wounded by a piece of exploded shell cutting its way round his forehead. The shell dropped just behind his gun and blew him 15 feet into the air.

In a letter to his uncle, Capt. John B. Flanigan, a farmer living near Lincoln, which was printed in The Journal's Sunday magazine, last week, Powell said:

"I have been lying in the hospital and trying to decide how many notches to file in my gun. Here's what it is: I have fired about 6,000 shots (I have that pretty accurate), and each shot, when it bursts, spits 355 round lead bullets about the size of a pigeon egg. Then, of course, there are the fragments of the shell, making at the very least 500 little missiles of love for the Germans. This makes three millions of shots, any one of which would entitle me to file another notch on my gun. But, let's say I only got one

Eight Languages In Little Shop On Viaduct Place

English, Turkish, Arabic, French, German, Spanish, and Greek Spoken. Owner is From the Far City of Smyrna

"W E SPEAK" Greek, Turkish, Arabic, German, Italian, Spanish.

This sign is on the window of a delicatessen shop on Viaduct place.

Roast beef can be served in Greek. Stew, in Turkish. Ham sandwiches, in Arabic. Dill pickles, in German. Spaghetti, in Italian. Omelets, in Spanish.

The shop was opened by a man who lived once in Smyrna under the rule of the Turks. He has working with him a brother-in-law, born on the same street in Smyrna.

Among the waiters in the shop is an Italian from Palermo, Sicily; a Greek, from Athens, Greece.

The owner of the shop of all languages is named B. Cohen. Years ago, he and his brother-in-law, Morris, of the same family name, left Smyrna, for New York. Morris, who was in charge of the shop one morning last week, said:

"I left Smyrna because I didn't want to serve in the army. My father and mother live there now. My brother has been compelled to enlist as a Turkish soldier."

When I came to America I knew no English, but I knew a trade. I was a blacksmith. I got a job without any trouble in New York and then I came to Atlanta.

"There is no place fit to live, but America." As he said this he was slicing a hunk of roast beef into strips for sandwiches. He paused and tapped the handle of the knife on the meat. "I only want to go back long enough to see my people, but never live."

"In Smyrna," he went on, "Turkish was my native tongue. I learned something of French and Spanish, because in that country where the ages are coming and going it helps you to know many languages. My brother-in-law, who owns the shop here, speaks Arabic; we have others who speak German and Italian, and we all know English."

According to Morris there are a good many shoemakers on Pryor street who are from Smyrna and some who are from Spain.

"There are a number of people in Atlanta," he said, "who have lived under Turkish rule. Some of us, like myself, have traveled much in the Holy Land. But America is to me really the only land of Holiness."

Then, he stopped talking to serve a wooden platter—full of cold meat to a customer.

Tired People Ask For Beds At Grady

THE superintendent of the Grady hospital said recently:

Atlanta seems to have more than its share of old, worn-out people, who appear to have no friends and no way to take care of themselves. People are constantly coming to us who want to be admitted as patients, although they are not sick. They are simply old and worn-out and want some place where they can lie down and can get regular food.

Their condition is very tragic. They have simply reached the age and the conditions of weakness where they shouldn't have to work any longer and where someone who is younger and vigorous should care for them.

But unfortunately they are without any staff for their old age. They have grown to be weak and tottering and have no prop or stay. The hospital can't take them in because we scarcely have room for the sick people. Many of these unfortunate are not eligible for admission to the almshouse. In fact, there is no place in the world for them.

"I don't know of any unhappier condition than such helpless, weary, old age."

Turtle Uses Glass Discs As Mirror

D ALTON, Ga.—Fred Wagners, an employee of the United States water plant, found a large turtle in a water meter box, the aquatic quadruped being about as big as a man's-sized green hat. When caught, the turtle had managed to remove the glass discs off the meter, and was using them, bedaubed with mud on one side, as mirrors before which he made his toilet.

Shut up in the meter box, the turtle found little to occupy his attention, so he learned the art of spinning the hands of the meter. He could make it register faster than can the water commissioners, which as all who saw him conceded, was a fairly creditable performance for a turtle.

It took only one look for the board of water commissioners to telegraph a hurry order for enough turtles to supply every meter in the city, but the order was hastily canceled when it was seen that the turtle got equally as much fun in making the meter run backward, as forward.

LEARN SPANISH BISHOP CANNON ADVISES YOUNG MEN OF SOUTH

By Bishop
Warren A. Cannon.

"The Monroe Doctrine," which most American citizens believe should be maintained at all cost by the government of the United States, is the declaration upon the part of our country that our national welfare is vitally involved in the political status of the Latin-American republics south of us, and that we have serious responsibilities with respect to any aggressions upon them by European powers.

It is rather remarkable that while the government of the United States has maintained so long and so insistently "The Monroe doctrine," our trade with our Latin neighbors has been no greater. One of the results of the war in Europe has been the awakening of both them and us to the importance of cultivating henceforth more intimate commercial relations with one another. Pan-American sentiments are in the air and Pan-American plans are receiving daily discussion. Latin-American statesmen and the leaders in our own country did not proceed far in the consideration of these matters before they discovered that a pre-requisite for profitable trade between the United States and the countries south of us is the establishment of banking institutions by our financiers through which the processes of exchange can be operated with facility and convenience. By such means both England and Germany have secured much South-American trade for many years past. The war in Europe having interrupted these currents of commerce, the South American peoples have turned their eyes toward us for what European nations have supplied heretofore. The duldest mind is able to see the vast importance of the commercial opportunity which has thus come to our country under present conditions.

Unfortunately it must be equally apparent that we are not ready to make the most of it. With inexhaustible natural resources and a vast territory in which an infinite variety of products abound, we have been able, in the past, to live prosperously by domestic trade between the different sections of our own country; and, by consequence, we have been somewhat indifferent to foreign trade. We have lived inside the barbarous wall of a high protective tariff until we have been negligent of our commercial relations with even our nearest neighbors. We have not sought their trade very zealously, and we have not studied carefully their customs nor learned to communicate with them in their own language. But the time has come when all this must be changed, and our most pressing want just now is men who are qualified to meet the demands of the situation which confronts us. Recently, when a proposition was under public discussion looking to the establishment of a central bank in the United States authorized to open branches throughout Latin-America, President Vanderlip, of the National City Bank of New York, pointed out our serious lack of capable men for such an enterprise. In an interview with the newspaper correspondents he pointed out some of the difficulties which would stand in the way of the successful operation of this scheme; and he is reported to have said:

"In the first place, the fundamental difficulty is in getting men. It is as hard a matter to get trained business men for branch banks as anything I know of; and when you add to that the difficulty of getting a trained banker who can speak Spanish and ask him to go to the other half of the globe, you will find it is almost utterly impossible. There is no definite and concrete proposal for any change in the banking relations in the conference so far as I have heard. The conference, however, will do us much good. I remember attending a Pan-American conference in the Blaine regime as a newspaper reporter, and have always found that they brought men closer together and made them more friendly. Yet banking institutions must be founded on hard business, and when you cannot get the right men to represent your branch abroad you are certainly not going to send any untrained men to do it."

In these few, but strong words, Mr. Vanderlip sets forth the prime obstacle in the way of all departments of our trade with Latin-America, as well as the chief difficulty in the way of the proposed scheme of a central bank with branches in the lands to the South. We have not the prepared men required. Few of even the educated young men of our country speak the Spanish language, and most of our colleges and universities do not give the Spanish language a fair stand in their courses of study. Our institutions of learning magnify the study of French and German, and give Spanish a secondary place. This should not be so, and our Southern institutions especially should not deal thus with the matter. They should offer full courses in the Spanish languages, and then go further in offering courses setting forth the history, customs, and conditions of the Latin-American countries.

For obvious reasons Southern men have many advantages for pursuing business in the Spanish-speaking countries to the south of us; and our Southern institutions should proceed to prepare with all speed and thoroughness men for such work. Both interest and duty coincide in this urgently important matter.

We should not look towards Latin-America with an eye for gain only; we should endeavor to discern and discharge our duties also towards our Spanish-speaking neighbors. We should fulfill the part of a strong, right brother with respect to them. We do not deserve to win their commerce if we do nothing for their moral and intellectual well-being. But we can neither gain from them nor carry good to them without trained men who speak their language and understand sympathetically their spirit. Such men our colleges and universities must prepare with the least possible delay.

The trustees of Emory University did a wise thing when, at their recent meeting in Oxford, they made provision to enlarge and improve the courses in Spanish offered by the school of liberal arts. This progressive policy has not been inaugurated too soon, and the university is fortunate in being able to secure for the Spanish chair a capable man qualified by previous residence in Cuba to teach not only the language, but impart knowledge of the customs and spirit of the Latin-American peoples to the students whom he will instruct.

Our colleges and universities should not only prepare men for service in Latin-America, but they should offer also such courses as will be calculated to draw students from Latin-America to these institutions. In view of the mildness of our climate students from the lands south of us would naturally prefer attending a really great institution in the central South to going to a school in the rigorous climate of the North.

Why not settle the present moment to make Atlanta a great educational center to which large numbers of Latin-American students may be attracted? To make such a center here will cost more money, but not to make it will cost more. This matter involves the future of Atlanta and the South-Atlantic and Gulf States more vitally than any other matter that has ever engaged the thought and effort of our people.

A WOMAN TO DIRECT ATLANTA'S RAILWAY TRAFFIC

MISS DITA MAY WEST.

IT WAS no trouble at all," said pretty Miss West, as she talked last week of how she once directed at least 100 or more trains a day entering or leaving Atlanta.

In the little office on the top of the dingy, battered signal station, just where the West End car turns off from Peters street, she worked eight hours a day giving trains "their orders."

In the phraseology of the railroad, Miss West was in charge of the "block" on this section of the line, and her duty was to signal when the trains should enter and leave. In plain words, she had the well-being of all the passengers and all the freight of two roads in her keeping.

Those two lines were the Central and the West Point, and the estimate that at least 100 trains a day passed through the "block," obedient to her directions, is very conservative.

"But it wasn't the least bit dangerous and it wasn't the least bit difficult to do," insisted Miss West last week. (Then, she stopped to give her full name and her address: Miss Dita May West, of 319 East Georgia avenue.)

"I simply kept a record of all the trains that passed, and there was scarcely any possibility of letting one into the switch before another was out of the way."

"But just the same, you directed all these trains entering or leaving Atlanta?"

"Yes, of course," she granted. "But it wasn't anything. It was just a question of giving directions with the semaphore, and keeping a tab on the trains."

"And, yet, few women do such work?"

"I know of only one other," she admitted. "The work at the Peters street station now is done by a woman. But still I don't think there's anything heroic or very trying about it. The worst part is being stuck up in that lonesome little office, seeing nothing but trains, thinking nothing but trains, just trains, trains, trains. I got so my sleep used to be full of engines and semaphores, and it was a joy to see anything human and able to talk."

After being "train director" at the little dingy station where the street car turns off from Peters street, Miss West did the same work at East Point, where she had even larger duties. But the system of this block was changed so that when trains entered or left heavy levers had to be thrown into place. Her work became physically impossible for a woman. Miss West then accepted a telegraphic position with the A. & A. Co.

"Isn't it all very romantic?" she was asked, "that looking after trains, and knowing that you are the boss, and that all those people who have gone traveling are more or less in your keeping?"

"She paused a minute and smiled. "Well," she confessed, "I don't like to say it was, and I'd like to think it was. But, really, it's just hard work."

Gainesville-Washington Air Route

A PIGEON station has been established in Gainesville, Ga., by H. A. Terrell, from which home pigeons fly to Washington, D. C. Recently a number of these birds made the flight in less than 12 hours.

The Gainesville (Ga.) News says: "If you have never seen these birds start on their homeward flight you have missed something. It even pays for having to get up at a most distressing early hour, for Mr. Terrell never starts the pigeons on their journey later than 5:15 a. m."

The leader of one drove of pigeons, which he liberated at his home on Broad street, at 5:15, arrived in Washington at 3:45, flying 649 miles in less than 12 hours.

Bird fanciers of Washington ship them to him in coops of twenty, which he keeps from one to thirty days, owing, of course, to weather conditions. Thirty days, however, is as long as he keeps them, for they do not leave so readily and don't make such record flights after that time.

At 5:10 Sunday morning Mr. Terrell liberated 200, and they lit out after leaving the coops; they circled in the air until they got high enough to see the sun. As the American Indian at night gets his bearing from Luna, they get theirs from the King of Day.

They circled to a distance of several hundred feet upward and then took a northeasterly direction, and from our point of observation they seemed to about center the public square.

Mr. Terrell wired the fanciers at Washington the time the birds left and Monday received a reply that they had arrived O. K.

Some of the younger birds were late in getting in—but all returned in good condition.

It is said that the owners of these pigeons wager large sums on the return of the birds and the number of hours it takes to make the trip.

But their intention is to breed birds with records, for like registered dogs, squabs from pigeons with flight records sell for a neat sum.

"Elberton's Frenchman" Writes of War

E. C. PODEVIN, who once lived in Elberton, Ga., at now an interpreter with the British army. He has written the following letter to the Elberton (Ga.) News:

"Dear Sirs: While the German shells leave alone the place I live in at present, I hurry up to drop you these lines, for you never know around here where you will be the next day and it is a real case of saying 'don't postpone until tomorrow' what you can do today."

"When I left your city two years ago I told you I would never forget the nice way I had been treated by all of you. This is true, believe me, and more than once comes back to my mind fond recollections of the two years I spent amongst the good people of Elberton."

"In spite of my narrow escapes, I have succeeded up to now to 'go through' German bullets, shells, bombs, etc., without the slightest scratch, and yet you can trust me that I have not 'ducked' at any. May be that my day is not far. If so I will be glad to give my life for such a good cause as we are fighting for and it is without fear that I am looking ahead."

"I would be glad to have you remind me to all my dear Elberton friends and tell them that if with God's help I get through that awful slaughter all right, I hope it will be my privilege to see them again some day and tell them how the 'Frenchman of Elberton' has fought for his country. Believe me always, dear sir,

"Yours very sincerely,
"E. C. PODEVIN."

"P. S.—As you can see, I am, for the time being, attached as interpreter to the British expeditionary force. Useful even in war time to know English and French."

A Bit of Courtin' Overheard at Fairburn

WE overheard a bit of courtin' last Sunday that is too good to keep. Some young fellow in order to get away from the ears of the crowd, broke into our back yard and humped himself and sweetheart upon our well curbed, close to our ears. To tell you all he said would take more space than we are allotted for this letter. We think that he had about reached the critical or psychological moment for unbelting his heart, when as usual with those verdant, youthful fellows, his belt refused to unbuckle, and this in substance what he stammered, and her answer: "Er Miss Effie, would you be sorry if I were to fall head foremost in this well and get drowned?" "Why, yes, I would have to see all this good cool water spoiled before singing breaks up." Dear readers, did you ever see a "cooter" sometimes called a terrapin, slip off a log in a mill pond into the water? If so, you can see that young fellow slip off our well curb and as quickly assist his would-be-soul-mate from her lofty perch and escort her back to the crowd, and proceed to loose himself. (We learned afterwards that he is a school professor in a small town down the river.)—Fairburn (Ga.) News.

30-Day-Old Goat Rivals Lion at Park

Young men wearing all manner of neckties were walking up and down on his neck clothed in a black stock that would have done a hundred years ago, and right behind him came another wearing the Italian style of shirt, cut low in the neck, and very poetic. He had the build of a butcher, but in dress, at least, he seemed to have the poetic soul.

The policeman on duty walked by and smiled benignly. "There's never any trouble here," he said. "Never any disorder. Grant Park is the best place in Atlanta for women and children. Sometimes a kid falls in the lake. But it isn't deep, and we always get him out."

A sober group was passing and one man was saying: "You can't rely on people now like you used to could."

And another was commenting: "I like to be right by the lake, don't you?"

And a third, a sweet young voice, was exclaiming: "It was raining, but he begged mamma, and mamma let me go."

That's Grant Park.

How I Hived a Swarm of Bees Bare-Handed

By William Garrard

WITHOUT being stung once, Ernest F. Deacon, of 76 Mansfield avenue, general agent for the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company, recently captured a swarm of bees from the roof of the Central club, 29 1/2 North Forsyth street, by scooping them up with his bare hands and dumping them into a box.

These bees were first seen by a traffic patrolman on Peachtree street. They were flying 20 feet in the air down the center of the street toward the middle of town. Up seventeen stories, over the roof of the Healey building they went, and then, in a straight line flew to the roof of the Central club.

Deacon was able to hive the bees with his bare hands without being stung, because when they are swarming they can't sting.

"They're too fat then," he explained. "You see, just before the bees swarm out of the old hive they load the greatest possible quantity of honey into their honey sacs for food until they make a new hive, build comb in it, and install fresh stores of honey. They're so full of this stored up honey while swarming that they can't twist their bodies sufficiently to sit down on you and sting you. Besides, being well fed and contented like a person is after a fine meal, they don't think of stinging. So you can handle our landlads of them just as safely as if they were shoebottoms instead of bees, provided you don't get nervous and squeeze one of them. There's a sting in him, somewhere, and if you squeeze him it'll come out and get into you."

Deacon was asked why bees swarmed out of their old hives this time of the year and flew around until they stopped at some place perhaps not half as good as the home they left—the roof of a locker club, for instance.

"They swarm," he answered, "because the parent hive becomes overpopulated to such an extent that all hands are cramped; it gets hot, honey is spilt all around; young bees are hatching every minute—the old ones get sick and tired of all this, and light out, headed by the old queen. She lays some queen eggs, however, in several large cells, to provide mothers for the bees she leaves behind her; the swarming up of one of these queen egg cells is the signal to get out and swarm. Generally, after the old queen leads out the prime swarm, as the first one is called, a young queen hatches in about eight days and leads out a second swarm, leaving the next queen to hatch to become the mother of the hive."

Ernest F. Deacon, Scooping Up Bees With His Bare Hands.

Some times a colony will cast as many as five or six swarms in this way."

Deacon said that beating tin pans to attract bees was a relic of dark ages; there's nothing to it, he said. The old-time belief was, he explained, that noise from the pan would draw the peculiar humming noise made by the queen in flight—the bees, becoming confused, would then cluster around and settle, trying to find the queen whom they can't hear.

"But there's nothing to that," said Deacon. "Pans didn't make those bees settle on the roof of the Central club; they just thought that they had a nice place to light, and they lit. The spraying of a fine stream of water into the swarm will stop it in the air, however, some times causes it to settle and cluster."

Deacon says the bees he captured on the roof are doing fine in his back yard, and he expects to have honey by the gallon this summer.

Young Hen at Monroe Has Everything But the Cluck

Looks After a Lot of Orphaned Kiddies, Scratches for Them, Mothers Them, and Is Learning To Talk

HEN BENJAMIN SORRELLS, of this city, who is of unquestioned veracity, tells the News man a very interesting, yes, unusual story, about what has occurred in his henery at his home in this city. Some few days ago a hen, the mother of six chickens, died and a young, half-grown pullet—on that has never laid an egg—took the little orphan huddles in charge and has covered and protected them, scratched for them and has fought for them. Mr. Sorrells said for a time it appeared difficult for the young hen to get the clucking qualities but, finally she did get the cluck so to speak, and is keeping it up splendidly. He further says that the young, mother hen is doing an even better part by the little chicks than their own mother. Mr. Sorrells is the oldest citizen of Monroe and affirms that he never saw anything in his life to equal it. He further stated that he had a hen in his yard that laid almost daily an egg that was tremendous in size, carrying two yolks of yellow.—Monroe (Ga.) News.

Coughs Up Doll After Three Years

A PECULIAR incident that happened in Lake City, Fla., last Friday was the coughing up of a metal doll, which had been swallowed three years ago by Georgia Garner, a winsome little maid of nine years.

Three years ago when with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Garner, she lived in Atlanta the little girl swallowed the doll, but did not remember doing so, only remembered having played with it and from that time had a severe cough, which at times caused alarm in the hearts of her parents that they had successfully had a number of different physicians to eliminate the possibility of tuberculosis, at the same time none of the physicians could account for the trouble with stopped instantly upon the coughing up of the pewter doll about one inch long.

Chimney Swift is a Bird of Mystery

MUCH has been learned about bird migration but much yet remains to be learned, and the following is one of the most curious and interesting of the unsolved problems. The chimney swift is one of the most abundant and best known birds of eastern United States. With troops of fledglings catching their winged prey as they go, alighting by night in tall chimneys, the flocks drift slowly down joining with other bands, until on the northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico they become a more numerous host. Then they disappear. Did they drop into the water or hibernate in the mud, as was believed of old, all birds that do not become complete. In the last week in March a joyful twittering far overhead announces their return to the Gulf coast, but the birds place during the intervening five months is still the swift's secret.—St. George (Ga.) Outlook.

Five Sets of Triplets Born to Kansas Couple

M. R. AND MRS. FRANK SCOTT, of Highland, Kan., have just had home with lots of land. They were married for, for although they have been married not quite ten years, they have had 19 children, and 12 are living. They hold the record for triplets, having five sets to their credit, and also two sets of twins. All the 13 living boys are under five years of age.

Mrs. Scott once boarded a train with her 13 boys and one first class ticket. The conductor informed her that she could not take her entire Sunday school class on one ticket, and it was not until she showed him the family Bible, with all the birth dates recorded, that he believed it was only her family, and permitted them to occupy five double seats while paying for one.—Muskegon (Okla.) Dispatch.

Woman Attacked By Swarm of Bees

VERSAILLES, Ky.—Mrs. Allen Jeff, while driving in a buggy on the Harrodsburg turnpike, drove into a swarm of bees, which settled upon her and stung her frightfully upon the face, neck and arms. Ben Johnson, a negro, saw Mrs. Jeff's plight and rushed bravely into the swarm and got Mrs. Jeff and her horse out of it. She was taken to her home and her injuries were considered serious. A regular tonight was that she was resting comfortably.

Farmers' Club Has Met For 40 Years

EUCHARIE, Ga.—Very few communities in Georgia take rank with the section surrounding Eucharie in prosperity county in point of production, property and culture. This is not due wholly to a soil rich in plant food, but is the result of enterprise and intelligence of the farmers. Perhaps the most potent factor in keeping up this activity is the ancient Eucharie Farmers' club which has met regularly once a month for 40 years.

Den er flower in er tree.

—Reveries of a Burhead.

CHARITY DOBBS went walking with her pet dog, Tum Evans. Their stroll was in the twilight hour and led down diverse paths into the outskirts of Piedmont Park. And 'twas there Fate, in the shape of a magnolia blossom, tripped Tum by the heels and landed him in jail.

It was a beautiful magnolia blossom. Even Tum admitted that, and he had every cause to curse it. Nodding high in festoons of green, it attracted the attention of Charity and aroused her curiosity, or should we say, her artistic temperament? "Honey bunch, git me dat flower," she wheedled. She knew her man. Not for nothing was Tum the champion of the possibility of tuberculosis. With one swing he was in the lower branches; shin by shin he approached his quest; had one hand extended to him, and then Fate extended to him.

With a mighty crash Tum fell, bringing down six limbs and a half of flowers likewise himself, straight into the arms of a park policeman. And Charity fled.

"What's made you fall, Tum?" inquired the judge.

"Judge," replied Tum earnestly, "Er June bug bit me on de neck."

Tum put that thing says for his horticultural explorations.

The Last Ride Together in Dartmouth.

THE scream of a North Dakota broke the stillness of summer evening in Hell's Half Acre like the cheese-knife spin of a rind.

"Lemme in dis house, mawd! Lemme in dis house," she yelled, battering at the old cabin door. And they doubtless would have let her in had not a policeman beat them to it.

"You're drunk," said the policeman, "come along."

Next day in recorder's court Nettie appeared as a wronged woman. Drunk? She never knew the taste of liquor. Drunk? Never a snowstorm had Nettie blundered into. She just wanted to get in because she didn't want to stay out.

"Hit wuz disway, Judge," she explained. "Me an' mah man, what his name am Albert, he had er bum up. So y' tiddy mawvin' he meet me an' say, 'Les go cab-ridin' tonight.' Was not to my feelings, you bet! An Experience Meeting.

NEVER how sweet Dartmouth like that released from Elliott Epps when sudden pain smote him in a region peculiarly adapted to the business of sitting down. It shivered the heart of Procyon, sniffing snout six blocks away, and awoke the slumberous citizens of Devil's Dip with all the stinging of a hot iron.

In fact, Elliott's howl was some fowl. It was all the more intense because it was wrested from him in that languorous moment when he lingered longer or slip away and leave us blinking at the dawn.

Elliott howled because his pants were on fire. In that happy forgetfulness of material things which is the leader's lot he had chosen to enounce himself on the stove. He curled up about midnight with one foot wrapped around a frying-pan and straightway was dead to the world.

There, about 4 a. m., his wife, Petrusa, found him. But Petrusa was in a hurry to cook breakfast. Hence, in the rush of affairs, she forgot Elliott until flame roared beneath him. Hence, too, the howl.

"When I felt dat fish after me, I reckoned I wuz in hell sho' 'nough," Elliott told the recorder. "I 'bus' outer dat house wudout no farewells an' hit wuz when I wuz turnin' de corner erbeatin' de breeze dat dis 'fliceman' post me."

"Auntie," said the recorder to Petrusa, "you should have had more consideration for your husband than to build a fire under him."

Petrusa tossed her head. "Huh!" she sniffed. "I ain't got time ter fool wid no worthless niggerman when dey's wuk ter be done. I jist above him ober on de skillet so I could git de breakfast." Hit's his business ef he want er git burned."

And when the judge dismissed the case Elliott strode out of the room, her arms swinging as if she liked to handle a mop.

Disputed Honors

Come erlong, come erlong, we mus' answer dat call:
Dancin' eroun' at de Potlicker Ball,
Licker in de back room, licker in de hall,
Twenty drinks er minute at de Potlicker ball!"

—After Dark.

AND yet you could hardly blame Sim Johnson. When one's honors and position are snatched from one simply because the craving for quaff is pressing, one is surely not to be blamed for voicing protest.

Possibly, however, Sim was to be censured for certain active measures he took by way of retaliation. "Sim, it seemed, was doorkeeper of Potlicker hall, and adorned this position with considerable éclat on the occasion of Potlicker balls, which were frequent and frugal."

He was quite proud of his job, was Sim, obtaining as it did certain pickings in the way of drums drenched behind the door which added to his desirability. At the Potlicker ball last week, Sim received an invitation from the first arriving guest to toss off a beer or so of beer.

From the testimony it appeared that Sim and the guest had not stopped at the first beer, but ran the count up to fifteen apiece. Black George, who served them, expressed it concisely. "Dey lapped up six bits wud er suds an' called fo' mo'."

Then, in a state of mellow but hazy fellowship, Sim returned to his duties—only to find that all the Potlickers had arrived during his absence and the position of doorkeeper had been turned over to Dropsy Dick, who had long coveted it.

"Dat's hoccume de rucus communc," Black George informed the judge. "When Sim seed Dropsy he walk up to him an' say, 'What fo' you grabbin' dese tickets, nigger?' Dropsy tell him he doorkeeper now, an' Sim call Dropsy er liyah, an' Sim dat time on hit wuz jist one powful mixup. De yuther niggers line in on bofe sides, an' when de natered git dat wuz all scrappin' an' cussin' an' bitin' one an' er. I neber seed sich er time in all mah life!"

And so the recorder sent six Potlickers to the hard highway, although, as was remarked, it did seem as if Sim Johnson was a bit justified in defending his sacred trust.

The Wages of Fat

"Nigger, how many hot-dawgs kin you eat at er settin'?"

"O' 'bout forty-ebben of you're thinkin' 'bout bettin'!"

—Colored Queries.

"JEDGE, I scragged his ear kase he wouldn't pay me mah money."

This was the plea of Fat Thompson before the recorder when he was arraigned on the charge of assaulting Jackson J. Jackson, proprietor of a hotfish house in which Fat was, apparently, the one and only servant. In extension of his act Fat alleged that Jackson owed him his wages for the past six weeks and when he refused to pay up had excited the indignation of the mental.

Jackson exhibited claw marks on his ear and swore up and down to the court that the pain of the organ was such that he lay awake nights groaning horribly.

"Although," declared the judge, "it doesn't look much mangled to me," and to Fat Thompson, "how much did this man pay you to work for him?"

"Jedge," avowed Fat, "he pay me one hot-dawg ebery night in de week. Lastwars, he was s'pose ter pay me dat much; but heah lately I ain't got no hot-dawg a'tall. I git dar five o'clock in de mawnin', sweep out de shop, wash de dishes fo' brekfus', empty de slops an' keep on datwayer twell mid-nigh' dat's when I see due ter git de dawg." But fo' de las' six weeks he ain't come ercest, an' jedge, I wuz sittin' powful honny!"

"Well I should think so, Thompson," remarked the recorder. "I'll dismiss the case against you and order Jackson to pay you your wages. Would you rather have them now or in installments, Thompson?"

"Fat walled his eyes at the judge. He declared, "I'll take 'em all right now."

Quite a large delegation then adjourned to Jackson's hotfish house, where, in appalled silence, they watched Fat Thompson slowly and methodically consume forty-two hot dogs, one right after the other.

Mixed Letters Cause Trouble

THIS is a true story. Here's how it whole thing happened. We pass it along as it was handed to us by the young lady herself, and our readers may watch for the denouement, either in the engagement columns of the big dailies, or possibly a clipping from the Police Gazette, telling of the assassination of one of two parties, neither living more than sixty miles from Eatonton, or perhaps a bloodless duel according to the French code of honor somewhere within the confines of Baldwin, or Bibb or Putnam.

It seems that the young lady in question to be popular" keeps "two strings to her bow" and thereby hangs the tale. Instead of writing to them on separate days, why, when "the spirit moves" she gets busy and writes to both of them, very frequently like the average Georgia circuit rider, who preaches the same sermon all around the circuit before looking up a new text.

One of the correspondents, the young lady told me herself, or rather did not deny the soft impeachment she calls "Dear," and the other "Darling" so the salutation in two mixed letters need not necessarily have caused trouble by them being placed in the wrong envelopes.

It so happened last week that the letter she wrote to John exactly suited what Jim had been begging and pleading for without avail, while the letter to Jim not only did not suit, but rather proved an exasperation—A Revelation! So here came two letters Jim "de-lighted," "exuberant," "hilarious" over John's letter which he had gotten by mistake. Vice versa—here came a scorching from John, raising more trouble than Germany's answer to the recent note of Uncle Sam on the continued use of submarines in civilized warfare.

Explanations were in order. She did not let either John or Jim know the real status quo, but diplomatically delivered a "good excuse" to John, letting Jim to this day enjoy himself. The sad part of the story is that John came Sunday to "Ven'ible" and, if possible, like Julius Caesar, to "Viel." The last chapter of the story, as stated above, will have to write later, when all the returns are in for Jim is coming over next week to "claim the spoils of war"—and then for the fireworks.

Matching Is Agin the Law in Uvalda Ga.

The Policeman Has Also Been Told to Keep An Eye On All Horse-Shoe Pitchers. No Cussin' Is Allowed

SOPERTON, Ga.—According to Rev. G. H. Turner, who recently visited Uvalda, that town has decided to mend its ways, and now has a high standard of laws in force.

Mr. Turner informs us that the mayor and council recently passed an ordinance making it a violation of law to shoot at the crack, or to match coins, either for money, drinks or cigars. The same also applies to pitching horse shoes.

It was also made a crime to use vulgar language in the presence of any person, whatever on the streets of the town. The penalty is fixed at $5.00 or 5 days on the streets.

The above are all admirable laws, and it is said that the policeman has positive instructions to see that they are rigidly enforced. Mr. Turner did not state whether the pernicious game of "chessers" was included in the system of reform recently put into effect at Uvalda. This is an evil that should not be overlooked, it should also be made against the law to bet more than three cents on a "royal flush."

Queer Laws Passed By State Assemblies

THE EL PASO (Tex.) Times enumerates a few recent examples of legislative folly in its own and other states:

Minnesota—Law to prohibit the catching of frogs.

Kansas—Law to prohibit the use of face powder, hair dye, or bleach, the plucking of ears and wearing of earrings.

Colorado—Law to compel citizens to go to roost before 7 p. m. daily. Providing that bulls driven along the roads at night shall wear lights.

Massachusetts—Bachelors to pay annual tax of $5. Prohibiting the wearing of whippers by doctors and dentists.

Nebraska—Laws compelling national guard to do ninety days' work each year on the roads and bridges of the state. Requiring dealers in stock food to pay a license of $15 per annum.

Texas—Compelling churchgoers to leave their artillery on the outside of the church walls.

Illinois—Prohibiting the giving of tips to barbers, porters, hat-makers, etc. Taxing bachelors thirty years of age $50 per year.

Minnesota—Law providing that lumberjacks shall be furnished with individual bathubs.

North Dakota—Law establishing uniform thickness of sleigh-runners.

Snake With Legs at Wrightsville, Ga.

REMARKABLE things are happening out on friend Eli Smith's farm near Savannah. Some time ago he fell into an old abandoned well from which he was extricated, sustaining little or no injury. And now Eli comes with a remarkable snake story. His little 11-year-old son, while hoeing in a field one day last week killed a 6-foot snake of the "coushwhip" species, and when his snakeship was "good and dead," the boy began a partial examination of the reptile, when he discovered that he had two short legs with tiny claws, located about eight inches from the snakes tail. The boy reported the find to his father, who, too, made an examination, and can vouch for the truthfulness of the statement.—Wrightsville (Ga.) Herald.

Geo. Bean's New Horse Tries Trestle-Walking

M. R. GEORGE BEAN'S new horse which he swapped for last week broke out on his Tuesday evening and ran out the railroad tracks. He was found about twenty feet out on trestle, lying down. They tied his feet and placed boards under him and dragged him out to terra firma. The horse was only slightly injured.—Sylvania (Ga.) Telephone.

Warning Given To All Parents

A COLORED boy was drowned in the tank well down the Southern railroad last Sunday afternoon, but Dr. Wilkins succeeded in bringing him to life again. Parents should keep their children out of the well, as it is deep and very dangerous.—Eastman (Ga.) Herald.

Grandma Williams Scrubbed on Sunday

A LITTLE incident happened in the city last Sunday that was a little out of the ordinary. Grandma Williams, who lives in the suburbs of the city, thinking it was Saturday, did a big day's washing and scrubbing. Some one passing told her it was Sunday, and she said she "thought it was Saturday."

One up-Town Ball Lot Is All That Is Left To Atlanta

Hole In Ground On Edgewood Ave. Is the Last Relic. Famous Names, Like Peachtree Blues, Are Passing Away

THE only uptown ball-lot left in Atlanta is the hole in the ground on Edgewood avenue just beyond where Edgewood and Gilmer street run together.

It used to be that there were vacant spots tucked about here and there in the very busiest parts of the city, where newsboys would mix work with play.

The fact of the matter is that back-lot baseball is dropping out of notice here. Every born-and-raised citizen of Atlanta can remember the unoccupied spots in the business sections and out in the residence parts that were sacred to baseball.

The privilege to play on these lots was handed down from generation to generation; and along with this right went the names and the ideals and the uniforms of the teams. The Peachtree Blues, for instance, were an institution in Atlanta. There are dozens of men here who can remember to have played on teams by that name. The old Peters lot, where All Saints church is now, was the home ground of the famous Blues.

Other baseball institutions almost as lasting as the Blues numbered probably a score or more. But with the passing of the back-lot ball grounds, these famous old nines are disappearing.

Right now, baseball in Atlanta as it used to be, is played nowhere much except in the dug-out place on Edgewood avenue. If you drop by there any afternoon at the right time you'll find a crowd of boys, mostly newsboys, turning the rocky, weed-strewn place into a playground.

They furnish the old familiar contrast; tow-headed boys knocking the stuffing out of a baseball and yelling their lungs out, right at the edge of a business street. People a few steps away worrying over useless money troubles, and the tow-heads forgetting everything but one thing—baseball.

This surviving member of what was once a whole host of back-lot playgrounds is on the same side as the Atlanta Telephone building. It is just a rocky, weedy, hole in the earth. But it serves its purpose.

Caddies, from the golf links at East Lake, Druid Hills, Ansley Park and Brookwood, have started something new on the few bits of vacant ground that remain available for play purposes. They are building small golf courses and instead of playing baseball games, are having tournaments.

One such course as this has been built at the old show grounds on Jackson street.

In the way of organized play, Atlanta every year is becoming better equipped. What has been lost in back-lots has been more than made up in city playgrounds.

Church That Was Built In a Day

CROSSETT, Ala.—On part of the site of the Rose City Inn a few years ago stood a little building which Crossett residents pointed out as "the little church that saved Crossett from whiskey."

Crossett always has been "dry." The Crossett Lumber company would not allow a saloon to be built in the town. But once a saloon threatened to invade the vicinity of the town. That was how the little church came to be built, many years ago.

Back in the early days, when the virgin woods crowded close to the edge of Crossett and telephones were first being used in Ashley county, a rumor started that Crossett was to have a saloon—not in the town, of course, but somewhat near.

Clark Buchner, manager of the lumber company at that time, went to Hamburg, the county seat, and learned that although no license had been issued, the saloon men were on their way to Hamburg. He hurried to the telephone. By his orders, given over the wire, lumber was rushed to a street corner in Crossett and a crew of carpenters was put to work on the erection of a little building, 14 by 16 feet in size. By telephone, Mr. Buchner kept in constant touch with the work through the day.

At 4 o'clock he hung up the receiver with a smile of satisfaction. Ten minutes later the saloon men arrived at Hamburg and presented a petition for a license.

"You can't build a saloon within three miles of Crossett," Mr. Buchner objected. "The state law will not permit it. We have a church there."

"But we left there only two hours ago and there was no church there," replied the astounded petitioners.

"We have built one since you left," said Mr. Buchner. "There's the telephone. Find out for yourself."

And they did. Small, it is true, was the structure the men had rushed to completion in a few hours, but still it was a church. For a time it was large enough to accommodate the congregations which gathered weekly. Later an addition was made. When the growth of the town made a larger church necessary the little building was used for a time as a school building, and later as a shop and printing office.

When Monroe Saw a Venus

MESSRS. STONE, WOOD, SNOW, HALE, DAY, KNIGHT and SHEATS, all prominent Walton citizens were standing on the street corner the other day when here comes along a visiting Venus, diked out in the gladiolus rage of the season, short skirt, half hose and all. Stone turned to Wood and Wood turned to Stone. Snow turned to Hale and Hale turned to Snow. Day turned to Knight and Knight turned to Knight and Knight turned to Knight. "Monroe (Ga.) Tribune.

Cat Gets Rabbits to Replace Kittens

NORFOLK, Ala.—In the home of a Norfolk county farmer, there is a pet cat to which the farmer's children are devoted. Several days ago she gave birth to four kittens. They were her first born. The farmer thought four were too many for one cat to raise, the cat of living being as high for cats as for people, so he took the two smallest kittens out to the creek and drowned them. For a while pussy was disconsolate, mewing as all mother cats will mew when bereft. But she did not stay disconsolate long. The farmer noticed pussy had ceased to grieve and glanced in the box where she was raising her young. Imagine his surprise when he found Mrs. Cat had added to the circle two young rabbits, just about as old as her own children. The rabbits seemed to be perfectly at home and were nursing side by side with their foster brother and sister. Pussy had gone to a neighboring field and robbed the nest, or burrow, or whatever a rabbit home is called, of two little molly cotton tails. What Mother Rabbit thinks of the rabbit-napping has not been learned.

White Rats Rout Brown Ones In Rhodes Building

Make Traps and Cats Unnecessary. Build a Home in the Wall, Have Weekly House-Cleaning, Take Morning Baths

A FILM office in the Rhodes building is using a flock of white rats to drive off the brown ones. Largely by accident, two white mice were brought to the office, and they began a war on their dark-skinned brothers. At the same time they started to add to their numbers.

The two original mice had, in a short while, twenty-eight offspring; and this "white" army began to hunt the brown rats from the most remote corners of the office. No cat or trap could have been as relentless.

A hole has been broken in the tile that lines the wall of the office, and the white rats make their home there. Sometimes, growing tired of one place, they move into desk drawers, or nest in filing cases. But for the most part they are constant to the hole in the broken tile, and they show a great deal of care in housekeeping.

Joe Marcellino, manager of the Consolidated Film & Supply Co., where white rats took the place of cats and traps, is authority for their housekeeping habits. He says they have set aside Monday as cleaning day, and that early in the morning of that day they drag from their hole in the wall all the strings and other miscellany dear to the heart of a rat, which they had labored to store up there. They clean the hole out thoroughly, then they start in to fill it up again.

Another of the cleanly habits of the white rats is a morning bath. A pan of water is set down in front of the hole, and the twenty-eight rats, each in his turn, has his cold water plunge.

The "white" army are fed regularly, and never sibble at the posters and moving picture film with which the office is stored. Brown rats, on the other hand, like nothing better than a gaudy piece of poster or a reel or two of film.

Joe Marcellino's experiment may prove one of the great discoveries of the moving picture business. White rats that drive off the brown ones and refuse themselves even to taste of film, are money savers.

You would appreciate this if you knew the quantity of moving picture film distributed yearly through Atlanta. The whole south gets its moving picture supply from this city. The mere express charges on the film shipped to Atlanta last year were over $300,000. And yet, three years ago there were only one or two film-distributing companies in this city.

Mrs. Godbee Hopes For Freedom

"EVERYONE is kind to me. Prison life is as nearly all right as it is possible for prison life to be. So said Mrs. Edna Godbee, last week, one of the four white women serving life sentences at the prison farm at Milledgeville. All Georgia remembers the day she appeared in the post office at Milledgeville, Ga., and shot down her divorced husband, Judge Godbee, and the wife he recently had married. Mrs. Godbee rarely sees strangers or gives out statements to the newspapers. But in this instance she made an exception.

"Life long ago lost most of its charm for me," she said. "I had little to live for except my daughter, Sarah Godbee, and my two sons, King and Frank. My daughter's letters give me new hope."

Down in Burke county, Sarah Godbee, lacking just a year of graduation with distinction, has been teaching a country school. But now that school has closed, she is near her mother.

"Everybody I see and everybody I hear about is a friend to me," went on Mrs. Godbee, "tender, sympathetic and there is nothing more that I can ask. The state officials, the prison officials, Judge Davidson, Mr. Rainey and all others whom I have met are most considerate. Warden Maxwell and his wife are kind."

"Of course, there is hardly any way for me to illustrate what I have suffered. I only know that years can make no difference to me, that my life has been lived."

"Yes, I have my hopes for release. Just how soon and through what course of action I am not in position to say."

"I find it hardest here after the evening meal is over and everybody retires. It is inconvenient for me to read, and anyhow it would be hard on my eyes. Frequently I long for some companionship to while away the hours."

"My purpose here is to live strictly according to the prison rules. I have no other desire than to abide by the restrictions of the law."

"I could go on and tell you a long, long story, much that the world never knows about, but maybe it is best for me not to burden myself, for it would do no good. All I can say is that I am deeply grateful for the cheering messages I receive, appreciative of the many expressions of sympathy and good wishes."

And so Mrs. Edna Godbee stays at the state prison farm at Milledgeville, taking part in the work around the building, directing the sewing, doing considerable repair work, and in beautifying the premises, and trying to make the best of fate.

Hobo Drinks Water at Dalton

DALTON, Ga.—After being shut up in a hot box car without food or drink for about thirty-six hours, a hobo was released here recently, only after insistent drumming on the door of the car had brought him rescuers.

The hobo could hardly speak when he was liberated, and he lost no time in getting his beak under a nearby water spout at the depot here. After drinking up a few gallons, and then leisurely sipping a couple of quarts of water, he told his tale of woe.

He had climbed in the car at Calhoun and had gone to sleep. When he awoke he found the car securely fastened, and he couldn't get the door open. Inside the car, he had found nothing to eat except a few sacks of fertilizer, and every drop of liquid in the car was represented by the beads of cold perspiration that broke out on his brow.

The Little Picture Lady

ONE of the most beautiful photographs ever made of an Atlanta child was that of Elizabeth Helen Jones, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Jones, of Decatur, printed some time ago in The Journal, in which the little girl was posed as the "Age of Innocence," the painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds. This photograph, by Thurston Hatcher, created interest, because the sweetness and innocence of the child expressed all the beauty of the painting.

Since then this "little lady of the picture" has posed for a number of photographs, but of them all the one here showing her simply as herself, is perhaps the best.

The little girl has golden, curly hair and dark brown eyes, which is a rather unusual combination. Her cheeks are dimpled, her color is fresh, and there is about her all the simple, innocent beauty of childhood. The pose in which she is shown here is one that the painters might well well copy.

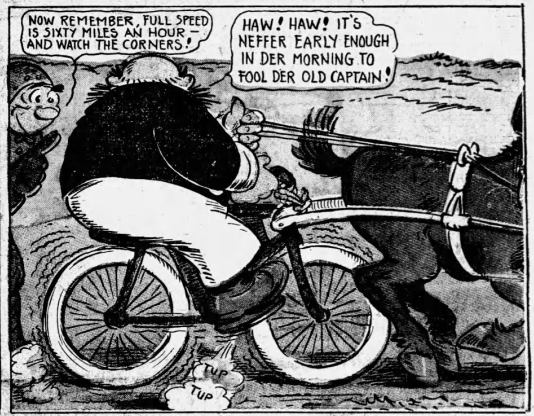

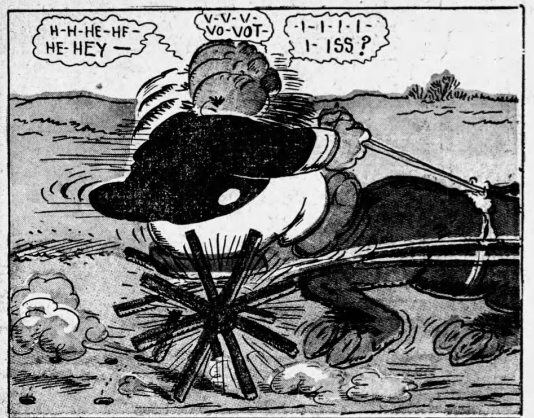

Like the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Veazey Rainwater, unusual photographs of whom were printed recently in The Journal, this little girl's beauty has attracted much attention. Many have wanted to paint or to photograph her. But just now she is busy learning to read and to write and get ready for school next year. She isn't at all concerned about her personal beauty.

Carload of Herbs From Commerce

MR. GEORGE W. FERTIC shipped this week a carload of crude drugs weighing 2,200 pounds. These roots and herbs are gathered up by Mr. Fertic and shipped north, and he derives quite a revenue from the business. But it takes a man with push and grit to do it, and Mr. Fertic has a good part of each in his general makeup. Camden county is coming to the front slowly but surely. Great oaks from Little across grow.
